RUM FINANCIERS SOUGHT IN QUIZ

Inquiry Into Huge Bootleg Ring Under Way

Effort Made to Discover if Banks Involved

Records Disclose Total of 20,000 Customers

(BY A. P. MURPHY WIRE)

NEW YORK, July 21.—Efforts to learn whether banks have financed the gigantic operations of bootleggers who shipped liquor in trucks from New York inland are being made by Federal Attorney Buckner at a John Doe inquiry by a grand jury.

"We particularly want to learn how a business of this magnitude was financed and if any banks were interested in the operations of the bootleggers," said Mr. Buckner.

BUSINESS WIDESPREAD

In the first day's inquiry, the grand jury heard testimony from William Gilbert of Nebraska, a Federal agent who for months has been following the trail that led last Friday to the arrest of Joseph Kirsch and seven others in a Broadway office, which is regarded as headquarters of a ring that sent salesmen far and wide to solicit orders and did business with persons in twenty-nine states.

The ring had 25,000 customers. Trucks were shipped containing liquor and when customers remitted payment, keys for opening the trucks were mailed them.

Besides Gilbert, the jury yesterday heard testimony from customers in Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska. Their names were withheld.

CLUB ROSTER ON LIST

Difficulties are expected in calling the customers to testify, for it is presumed that many used fictitious names and addresses. Mr. Buckner pointed out that some of the names on books seized in New York were prospects and not customers. In this connection, there is a list of members of the Louis Country Club, where the women's national golf championship is to be held in Des Moines. The list was found on George Fox, salesman, arrested in Des Moines.

STATE OFFICER INVOLVED ON CHARGE

(BY A. P. MURPHY WIRE)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—A warrant charging a violation of the Volstead Act was returned by the United States Commissioner's Court here today against Calvert Steele, also known as Fred Steele, Deputy State Fish and Game Warden of Santa Cruz county. The charges against Steele were not detailed by the prohibition enforcement agents.

Other warrants were sworn out against unnamed individuals on the same charge in a general roundup of suspects variously employed in the public service who are believed to have aided the operation of the rum smugglers and bootleggers along the coast south of here.

Chester J. Howard, former Federal prohibition agent, who was arrested today on a charge of extorting $250 from "Pietro Agnew" to quash a bootleg charge, appeared before a United States commissioner and was released on $500 bonds. His hearing was set for Friday.

APPLICATIONS FOR DRY POSTS FOUR IN

(BY A. P. MURPHY WIRE)

WASHINGTON, July 21.—With a great pile of applications and recommendations for appointment to the new prohibition enforcement staff piled up at the treasury, and no decisions upon them reached, officials today began to express doubt that the new plan would be put into operation August 1, as originally planned.

The dry board of strategy had been called to meet tomorrow, however, contingent upon the return of Assistant Secretary Andrews from a brief inspection, to go into the question.

Hundreds of persons seeking appointment to the new jobs continue to apply to the treasury and the prohibition unit. These plea, together with documents estimated at 10,000, recommending various men and some protesting against the promotion of the present enforcement officials are expected to receive consideration in a process of elimination today undertaken at the conference.

Creation of the twenty-four positions of Federal prohibition administrator has developed an intense competition, letters received daily coming from men in all walks of life and various organizations and enforcement bodies.

EGG SHIPMENT HELD FOR OVER TWO YEARS

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

CASA GRANDE (Ariz.) July 21.—Two and a half years ago, the Casa Grande express office received a sitting of eggs from California for a local poultryman, with a $25 C.O.D. bill, for the eggs were of high degree. But, it happened, the shipment had been a month on the way, so was refused by the consignee. Each month since the date of receipt, the agent has made report of nondelivery of the eggs. He has just received authority to dispose of them, without suggestion of public sale.

RECRUIT AREA ALTERED

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—The recruiting district of Seattle has been reorganized and now comprises all of the State of Washington north and west of the Columbia River, and Alaska, with stations at the following places: Seattle, Camp Lewis, Fort Lawton, Fort Worden, Fort Casey, Fort Ward, Chilkoot Barracks, Anchorage and Valdez.

RAIL FRANCHISE IN PHOENIX VOID

Hotly Contested 1923 Grant Expires by Limitation

Line in Two Years

Espee Makes No Attempt to Take Right of Way

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

PHOENIX, July 21.—The Tucson, Phoenix and Tidewater Railroad franchise through the city of Phoenix has expired by limitation and by failure to complete the line within twenty-four months from the date of July 18, 1932. On that day the franchise was given by the electors of Phoenix after a hotly contested campaign, though the vote stood 1522 to 154.

The main issue was the granting to the company, one headed by James E. Douglas, of a right of way across the city on Madison street, one of the city's main thoroughfares, a block nearer the city center than Jackson street, used by the Santa Fe Railroad system, and two blocks within Harrison street, used by the Southern Pacific-Arizona Eastern lines.

On May 15, 1934, Mr. Douglas transferred the franchise to the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad system, of which his brother, Walter Douglas, was president. This second ownership was of very short duration, for on June 11, last, there was dual announcement of absorption of the entire Southwestern system by the Southern Pacific. Plans, stated as of inception months before, were announced with respect to the share that Phoenix should have in the readjustment program that turned all of Southern Arizona over to the Southern Pacific.

President William Sprague of the Southern Pacific came to Phoenix in a successful effort to mollify an alarmed public and made announcement of the building of the new Phoenix line that now is well along toward completion from Phoenix to Wickenburg. No attempt has been made by the Southern Pacific to take over the Madison-street franchise, which now appears void.

Passengers of Death Car May Face Indictment

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

CHICAGO, July 21.—Thomas McInerney and Michael J. Varnery, passengers in an automobile which ran down and killed a man and fatally injured a woman, as well as William J. Cusack, driver of the car, are reported to have been named in true bills returned by grand jury today, charging manslaughter.

This unprecedented action, it was explained by Assistant State Attorney Fairbank, was caused by the grand jury's belief that the occupants of the car were as guilty as the driver, in that they talked with him and possibly distracted his attention from the wheel.

Brant Rancho Guernsey Milk

Now Available for Home Delivery

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY

CRESCENT CREAMERY COMPANY

announces that it has persuaded BRANT RANCHO, producers of world famous Guernsey Milk, to permit them to distribute the milk from their last importation of Guernsey cows to Crescent Creamery's home customers. This is the first time that anyone has been able to have this delicious, rich, yellow milk in their homes as the supply in the past has been consumed by the better clubs, hotels and hospitals. (see list below).

Brant Rancho has been awarded gold medals every year for the ten for highest quality of milk and cream at State and National Milk Shows, including both gold medals at the National Dairy Show in Chicago (the largest dairy show in the world), where the United States Government awarded Brant Rancho the two highest and first and only 100% perfect score ever given by the government. Brant Rancho is the only dairy that has received 100% perfect score for both its milk and cream.

Brant Rancho has the largest herd of pure or registered Guernsey cattle in the world and the only one in Los Angeles County. Only the pure, known as registered Guernsey cattle are kept. The superiority of their product is apparent in the quality of the milk. No other milk is equal to Brant Rancho Guernsey Milk in its rich yellow color and delicious creamy flavor.

The available supply for home delivery is very limited. Your order must be placed in advance. At the start delivery will be limited to the Hollywood and Beverly Hills district, that which is generally west of Vermont Ave. and north of Pico Blvd. Orders will be filled in the order in which they are received. Those arriving after the available supply is exhausted will be placed on the waiting list.

The first delivery will be made Friday, July 24th. Phone your order now to HOLLY 5115.

Features Which Out-Chrysler Past Chrysler Results

Increased Power—Approximately 10 per cent more torque, giving 70 miles per hour with greater ease and quickness than ever before.

Greater Acceleration—5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds; power enough to climb the steepest grades and pull through deep mud or sand, from refined power plant with a crankshaft of 50 per cent greater torsional rigidity.

Remarkable Fuel Economy—Carburetor improved to deliver 20 and more miles per gallon of gasoline, notwithstanding increased power and acceleration.

No Vibration—Larger seven-bearing crankshaft and scientifically balanced rotating parts completely smooth out vibration which ordinarily would result from increased power.

Easy Gear Shifting—Softer operating clutch and larger transmission gears to compensate added power still easier and smoother shifting.

Improved Rear Axle—Ring gears and pinions are larger; differential carrier heavier to handle increased engine power.

Attractive Color Combinations—Body colors, in two, are the most attractive and beautiful ever offered. Chrysler-designed, Fisher-built closed bodies are more refined; attractively low and smoothly rounded.

As other cars strive to draw close to the Chrysler Six—the Chrysler Six pulls farther and farther away.

To emulate Chrysler Six appearance is a privilege almost any one can exercise.

But to approach Chrysler Six performance even distantly is an achievement which Chrysler engineering and Chrysler manufacturing facilities will continue to render difficult to the point of impossibility.

Chrysler Six results from the first were unprecedented. There had never before been anything like them.

Once again Chrysler strides far ahead, with new superiorities in performance, in quality, in ride-ability, in beauty of body design, materials and colorings, and in everything that goes to make up the leadership which it has always maintained. If there was a thrill in Chrysler Six performance before—and the whole world knows there was—that thrill is immeasurably accentuated now.

In spite of almost overwhelming public approval—in spite of a sales success surpassing anything in the history of the industry—in spite of complete and deep-seated satisfaction on the part of more than 53,000 owners—

Walter P. Chrysler and his staff of engineers have never relaxed for a moment their labors to emphasize and enhance the wonderful performance qualities of the Chrysler Six. Where before there was power beyond the highest ability of any engine of equal size, now there is increased power, in prodigious plenty—power that the average owner will probably never use to its full extent more than two or three times during his ownership.

Where before get-away and acceleration were swift, they are even swifter now.

The 70-mile speed was always in leash at the tip of your toe—but now, with greater power, it is more easily and more quickly reached.

In smoothness, Chrysler engineers now actually excel the former super-smoothness introduced by Chrysler.

The beauty originated by Chrysler—and which still belongs to Chrysler alone—is re-expressed in refined and attractive body lines and new body colors, with Chrysler-designed closed bodies built by Fisher.

Almost two years ago, the public eagerly conferred on the Chrysler Six the leadership which this latest car now so positively re-affirms.

Chrysler pioneered in providing a degree of performance, quality and riding comfort which began to render obsolete the heavy, older-fashioned, costly vehicles; and it now goes even farther, with more alloy steels than before, and with the still higher quality which increased production makes possible.

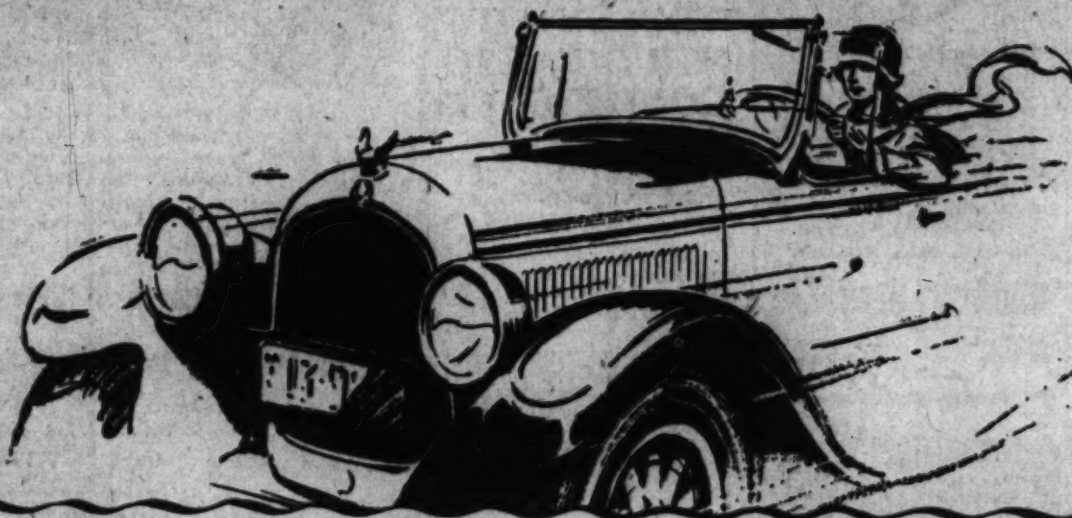

Chrysler pioneered in designing bodies and creating new beauty on the basis of dynamic symmetry.

Chrysler pioneered the light, compact quality Six, combining utmost convenience with generous roominess—with low center of gravity—with the center line pivot steering which makes the car delightfully easy to handle—with seven-bearing crankshaft—with thermostatic control of motor heat for maximum efficiency—with hydraulic four-wheel brakes to assure safety—with a new scientific spring suspension which prevents sidesway.

Chrysler pioneered, almost two years ago, in providing the Purolator—a filter which removes all impurities from the crankcase oil as the motor runs—and set an example which is now being generally followed.

Chrysler pioneered in providing an air cleaner to prevent road dust and grit from entering the cylinders with the fuel. Today's Chrysler Six puts an interpretation on performance, quality, agility, and a riding ease enhanced by Watson stabilizers as far in advance as was the original Chrysler interpretation almost two years ago.

We are eager to have you drive this new Six for yourself. If you will do that, you will realize as we do that there is nothing in the present market, and nothing likely to appear, to equal the Chrysler Six.

Open Evenings Until 9; Sundays 10 to 3.

Speaker Discourses on Zion Co-operative Plan

Hoover's Delegate Pleads for Waste Elimination

SEATTLE, July 21.—With one general session, eight departmental meetings, a luncheon and dinner, a boulevard trip and tea at the Seattle Golf and Country Club for the wives of visiting Advertising Club members, and the annual program tonight, delegates to the convention of the Pacific Advertising Club Association put in a busy fourteen hours today.

At the general session this morning R. J. Hutton, a member of the Zion Mercantile Company, Salt Lake, speaking on "The Zion Co-operative Plan," suggested the belief that the present system of retail merchandising is in serious danger of being wiped out by a manufacturer's direct selling and chain store operation—sooner or later, said he, this question must be met, if many of the stores now in business are to continue. It must be by meeting the new movement on its own ground by stores in various centers uniting and buying in quantities.

A. Heath Othman, chief of the Domestic Commerce Division of the United States Department of Commerce at Washington, D. C., went to the convention by Secretary of Commerce Hoover for the special purpose, talked on "What the Public Utility Industry Means to the Nation."

His talk was largely on the growth of the new sciences of advertising and public utility. He said that the new sciences of advertising and public utility are growing so fast that they are now a part of the life of the nation. He said that the new sciences of advertising and public utility are growing so fast that they are now a part of the life of the nation.

TALK ON "GROSS BLAB" In the departmental meeting discussing public utilities advertising this afternoon D. L. Scott, advertising director of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, in an address on "The Gross Blab," said: "The threat of political absorption by the public utility advocates is an element which tends to prepare the public utility advertiser for the worst."

Scott urged the utility advertisers to make the most of their resources to effective publicity through legitimate channels.

The "Wrong Media" and "New Wrong Media" and "New Ideas for Ideas for New Business" were the topics of addresses today by Russell M. MacLennan, advertising manager of the First National Bank and Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, and Charles G. Lincoln, assistant vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles.

Day after day, weekly newspapers and magazines were stressed as the most valuable media of all by Mr. MacLennan, who said that the advertiser should be chiefly with the subject of advertising as applicable to bank institutions.

The importance of good will in banking, as in merchandising, was the outstanding feature of Mr. Lincoln's address, which he stressed in this respect attaching to the former, Mr. Lincoln also gave a detailed account of the methods of Los Angeles banks in striving to win favor with their patrons and acquiring new business.

In a city filled with newcomers, as Los Angeles, the matter of bank acquaintance and business development became a unique problem unlike that found by bankers in many other parts of the country.

At the opening of today's session it was announced by President Lloyd Spencer that the executive committee of the association had elected to succeed him Don E. Gilman of the Christian Science Monitor staff at San Francisco. The president-to-be is former Seattle man, having been employed in the advertising department of the Seattle Times in 1916, when he first arrived on the Coast. He has been a resident of San Francisco ten years.

The luncheon in the Spanish ballroom at the Olympic Hotel at noon was featured by the second three-minute speech contest of the convention. Twelve entrants were on the program to speak on "How Advertising Lowers the Consumer Cost of a Commodity."

STOCKTONIAN WINS CUP Laurence Pease of Stockton, Cal., won the silver cup. Second honor went to Harold Hagen of Tacoma, and T. T. Baer of Palo Alto, Cal., was third.

The Los Angeles delegates today had recovered from the effects of their sea trip, but were unable to participate in the "Triton" night program because five members of the cast were unable to reach here.

Many will return on the Emma Alexander Saturday, others, including Secretary and Mrs. Thomas, are taking a trip up Mt. Rainier, while President Irving Smith and his wife will leave for a Canadian tour. Carmen Smith was chosen arbiter over the business session in the Metropolitan Theater this morning.

TOKIO READY FOR CHINESE CONFERENCE

Favorable Reply States Japanese, Americans and British Agree on Policy

(BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS) TOKIO, July 21.—The Japanese government has sent a favorable reply to the American note delivered by the American Embassy last week, suggesting a conference on the Chinese customs tariff and the creation of a commission to consider the question of extraterritoriality in China as agreed to at the Washington Conference.

A Foreign Office spokesman said that Japan, America and Great Britain were in complete accord on all points of policy regarding China. Great Britain at first was inclined to disagree with certain suggestions regarding procedure, but Sir Charles Eliot, the British Ambassador in Japan, has notified Baron Shidehara, the Japanese Foreign Minister, of Great Britain's final acceptance of the Washington proposals.

BOLT FATAL TO TWO HORSES

Driver and Remaining One of Team Escape

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) July 21.—Preston Meador, driving a three-horse team, started to unhitch when a rain-storm disturbed his work as Kelly Tanks east of Flagstaff. He had dropped the stags of the middle horse when he and the team were enveloped in dashing light, that was from a lightning stroke. The two horses on the outside stood still for a moment and then pitched forward, dead. The other horse survived, while Meador knew little discomfort from his experience. It is well known that a horse cannot stand as much electricity as a man can.

Domestic Commerce Division of the United States Department of Commerce at Washington, D. C., went to the convention by Secretary of Commerce Hoover for the special purpose, talked on "What the Public Utility Industry Means to the Nation."

His talk was largely on the growth of the new sciences of advertising and public utility. He said that the new sciences of advertising and public utility are growing so fast that they are now a part of the life of the nation.

TALK ON "GROSS BLAB" In the departmental meeting discussing public utilities advertising this afternoon D. L. Scott, advertising director of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, in an address on "The Gross Blab," said: "The threat of political absorption by the public utility advocates is an element which tends to prepare the public utility advertiser for the worst."

Scott urged the utility advertisers to make the most of their resources to effective publicity through legitimate channels.

The "Wrong Media" and "New Wrong Media" and "New Ideas for Ideas for New Business" were the topics of addresses today by Russell M. MacLennan, advertising manager of the First National Bank and Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, and Charles G. Lincoln, assistant vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles.

Day after day, weekly newspapers and magazines were stressed as the most valuable media of all by Mr. MacLennan, who said that the advertiser should be chiefly with the subject of advertising as applicable to bank institutions.

The importance of good will in banking, as in merchandising, was the outstanding feature of Mr. Lincoln's address, which he stressed in this respect attaching to the former, Mr. Lincoln also gave a detailed account of the methods of Los Angeles banks in striving to win favor with their patrons and acquiring new business.

In a city filled with newcomers, as Los Angeles, the matter of bank acquaintance and business development became a unique problem unlike that found by bankers in many other parts of the country.

At the opening of today's session it was announced by President Lloyd Spencer that the executive committee of the association had elected to succeed him Don E. Gilman of the Christian Science Monitor staff at San Francisco. The president-to-be is former Seattle man, having been employed in the advertising department of the Seattle Times in 1916, when he first arrived on the Coast. He has been a resident of San Francisco ten years.

The luncheon in the Spanish ballroom at the Olympic Hotel at noon was featured by the second three-minute speech contest of the convention. Twelve entrants were on the program to speak on "How Advertising Lowers the Consumer Cost of a Commodity."

STOCKTONIAN WINS CUP Laurence Pease of Stockton, Cal., won the silver cup. Second honor went to Harold Hagen of Tacoma, and T. T. Baer of Palo Alto, Cal., was third.

The Los Angeles delegates today had recovered from the effects of their sea trip, but were unable to participate in the "Triton" night program because five members of the cast were unable to reach here.

Many will return on the Emma Alexander Saturday, others, including Secretary and Mrs. Thomas, are taking a trip up Mt. Rainier, while President Irving Smith and his wife will leave for a Canadian tour. Carmen Smith was chosen arbiter over the business session in the Metropolitan Theater this morning.

CALIFORNIANS SEEK ALTITUDE

Many Push on to 8000 Level in Mountains

Park Chief Says People Desire to Avoid Crowds

Wild Country and Good Fishing Also Attractive

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, July 21.—Californians are taking to the high country this year as never before. National park officials, after studying reports on travel into the parks, are authority for this information.

Judging by experience at Yosemite National Park, people are not only breaking records for travel to the 8000-foot level, that of Yosemite Valley, but they are pushing up to the 8000-foot altitude, and higher.

This season, auto tourists, horseback riders and hikers are waiting for the snow to subside before they made their way into the high meadows and peaks of Yosemite. Where city folks used to camp in sheltered Yosemite Valley and make occasional jaunts to high country, they are pitching tents and camping up where the brooks are ice cold and where the mountain slopes are snow covered.

Supt. W. B. Lewis of Yosemite National Park explains this by saying that many people like to get up where the country is wild, where crowds are never found, and where fish are plentiful.

"People are coming to know that the mountains are safer than their cities," Lewis said. "They are not afraid to put their machines in low gear for a while and push into almost virgin country. It will be but a few years at this rate when city people will be as familiar with the widest mountain country, with its wonderful scenery, as they are with Yosemite Valley."

Autos have been driving into Yosemite National Park over the Tioga Road, which reaches the 11,000-foot altitude at one point, at the rate of more than 250 machines a day, an unheard-of record for Yosemite. Other high Sierra points report similar high traffic, indicating that Californians are setting out to know their mountains.

Bank Deposits and Resources Set High Mark

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE) ST. PAUL (Minn.) July 21.—Deposits and total resources of the banks of the United States are larger than ever before, and figures given reflect as a whole a healthy condition of the nation's banking institutions, R. N. Rins, secretary-treasurer of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks, told the annual convention of the association here today.

WORK HALTS "CLOCK GAZING"

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE) WASHINGTON, July 21.—Employees of the Interior Department do too much sitting down, clock watching and tumbler over surplus office furniture to suit Secretary Work, so he has given orders to strip the department's offices for action. The first move was in the General Land Office, where 250 chairs were removed, most of the clocks dismantled, and two van loads of stools, wardrobes and desks valued at $6254 turned over to the government's general supply office.

NOTAS TELEGRAFICAS

Noticias de Washington
WASHINGTON, Julio 21.—Se ha recomendado que sea aceptada la oferta que hizo Ford por docecientos barcos del gobierno.

La comisión senatorial que ha abrido una información sobre tarifas postales, acaba de escuchar a los representantes de organizaciones de la prohibición.

Se han manifestado dudas acerca de que pueda llevarse a la práctica para el primero de Agosto próximo el nuevo plan tendiente al cumplimiento de la prohibición.

Ante la comisión del comercio se han presentado los representantes de la industria del ferrocarril de Nickel Plate.

Considera Sincera la Nota de Berlín
LONDRES, Julio 21.—La respuesta alemana a la nota francesa sobre seguridad, que se hizo pública, esta noche, es considerada por los ingleses como una tentativa de buena fe por parte de los alemanes para dar solución a las dificultades existentes y crear una situación dentro de la que se pueda avanzar efectivamente hacia la pacificación europea.

La nota se preparó muy cuidadosamente para que contuviera todas las objeciones que presentan varios particulares y partidos alemanes contra las proposiciones de los aliados. Muchas de estas objeciones eran meramente asuntos de detalle, que podrán resolverse rápidamente cuando se efectúe la conferencia que la nota alemana deja entrever; pero las demás son de vital importancia, y se las ha formulado con tanta anticipación para que puedan los aliados estudiarlas despacio, antes del momento en que vengán las negociaciones.

La principal de estas objeciones vitales es la que ataca la cláusula 14 del Tratado de Versalles. Aquella autoriza a los franceses a marchar a través de territorio alemán para ir a auxiliar a sus aliados del Báltico. También hace observar Alemania que sería para ella una situación anómala el entrar en la Sociedad de Naciones como país neutro, cuando todos los demás miembros de dicha sociedad están armados de todo a todo.

Señala Berlín el hecho de que el pacto de la Sociedad estipula el completo desarme ulterior, y advierte que se tengan algunos arreglos para atravesar el período que media entre la época actual y la realización de ese ideal.

Aquí no se cree que la conferencia tenga probabilidades de comenzar antes del próximo Octubre. Se cambiarán más notas para discutir los pormenores, desvanecer malis inteligencias, y preparar el camino para el éxito de dicha conferencia.

México Toma Providencias para Abolir el Vicio en la Frontera
CIUDAD DE MEXICO, Julio 21.—El ministro de lo Interior está resuelto a desterrar de las poblaciones fronterizas mexicanas el vicio mercantilizado y el contrabando, y a ese efecto ha librado instrucciones a los empleados aduanales de toda la frontera, para que estudien la situación, e informen sobre aquellas personas que se ocupen en negocios que el gobierno ve con malos ojos.

En opinión del ministro, bajo la expresión de "vicio mercantilizado" se comprenden las casas de juego, los cabarets administrados de manera inmoral, los antros de drogas heróicas, y otros establecimientos similares, que florecen en las poblaciones cercanas a la frontera con los Estados Unidos.

Cuando se reciban los informes de los empleados, se darán pasos definitivos encaminados a limpiar esas ciudades. Concentrándose la atención, antes que en ninguna otra, en las poblaciones de la Baja California, Sonora y Chihuahua.

LONDON, July 21.—About 100 Americans were among the 6000 guests who today attended a garden party given by King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace. The visitors were especially interested in seeing the portable outdoor canvas adobe where the King works during hot weather.

Only a few presentations were made to their majesties. Among those presented was Mrs. A. Critchenden Smith, Nebraska.

Other Americans who attended the garden party included Col. and Mrs. Robert Root, San Francisco; Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, and Mrs. Capper, and Representative Cordell Hall of Tennessee, and Mrs. Hall.

Three interesting studies of Ruth Roland. On the left Miss Roland as the world knows her on the screen; to the right, posed in the costume of medieval days—picturesque but quite contrasting to the styles of 1925, in which Miss Roland appears in the center picture wearing a most attractive wrap of French flannel embroidered in eyelets and lined with hand-painted silk, trimmed with beige fox. A new arrival in Hollywood, Manchu Duke, a wonderful police dog, just arrived from China.

THE topic that seems to come up burning for discussion this week is Charlie Chaplin's new comedy, "The Gold Rush." In many ways it is the most skillful picture he ever made; evidently it is to be a box-office sensation.

Critics Ag'in It

I find that nearly all the professional critics sniff at it.

They think it is far below "Shoulder Arms" and "The Kid."

They say that it is barren, spread on too thick, and lacks zest. Laughs, they say, are too scarce, gags too old. Some of them insist that if Charlie Chaplin hadn't made it, the comedy would have bored the audiences to tears.

Actors Admire

Actors and directors, on the other hand, are crazy over it.

They point out this and that which I shall outline later on, and say it bespeaks a technique that never has been equalled in the history of the screen.

A New Chaplin

Personally, I was interested in the picture; but I was more interested in Charlie Chaplin.

I have never seen him like this before. The Charlie Chaplin of this picture is a new Charlie Chaplin; yet an older and a sadder Chaplin.

His acting—his clowning—seems to lack a zip and an unction it has usually had before; but, on the other hand, it has a depth I have never seen before.

Genius Sweating

To me the chief fault of the picture was a sort of self-conscious effort.

It was genius struggling for effect. In other pictures Charlie was funny just the way champagne bubbles. In this picture he is funny because he knows what would look funny.

For the first time, he seems to stand apart and pull the strings.

Candidly, I think Charlie is a greater artist than he has been before; but he has lost something that will never come back to him.

In a way he is at the end of his journey; but he may be starting out on another and bigger voyage. I don't know. A very critical time in his life is coming.

"Epic Sweep"

Before the picture was shown to the public I used to get excited bulletins from various persons who had seen it in the projection-room. They said that it had an epic sweep bigger than "The Covered Wagon."

I failed to see it in the picture. There was more sweep than epic.

Charlie used a lot of people in his Klondike scenes, but you didn't feel any epic in it. You didn't have the feel of civilization being hurled out into the snows. To tell the truth, I didn't feel much drama in the hunt for gold.

Raymond Griffith Says—

Raymond Griffith was one of the comedians who was knocked into a heap of gasping admiration by the Chaplin picture.

What he saw in it would not ordinarily be noticed by a casual theatergoer.

He said that the place where Charlie was hit in the face by the snowballs, at the cabin door, was the most extraordinary bit of technique he had ever seen on the screen.

Mr. Griffith pointed out that you felt sure you had seen some one throw those snowballs; whereas you really hadn't. They just came out of nowhere. This remarkable illusion was accomplished entirely by expert "timing."

Great Acting

Another place that excited Mr. Griffith's admiration was Charlie's first entrance into the Klondike dance-hall—a little, lonely, forlorn figure. Everywhere there were hands extended; but none for him. Charlie has left his stamp on the screen as perhaps the greatest actor of his time, but Griffith maintains that this scene must be recognized as the flood-tide of Charlie's genius.

The Oceana Roll

One thing that especially impressed me about the picture was the dance of the bread rolls.

You will remember that the little tramp had invited a group of music-hall girls to a New Year's dinner, and had starved and saved to get the money to do it.

They forgot all about it; so Charlie sat at his decorated table alone.

Presently he fell asleep and dreamed that they were there, and that he was the proud host at a wonderful dinner. To entertain them he stabbed two forks into bread rolls, and made the rolls dance like little feet.

This, I maintain, was the cleverest pantomime ever put on the screen.

The wonder of it was this, that, with these two little mimic feet, he created a character, and that character was not Charlie Chaplin.

Being Funny

It is a question whether any comedian can keep on indefinitely being funny.

Although Charlie is perhaps as funny in this picture as he ever has been before, there is a hint that the game of clowning is beginning to pall on him; that his mind turns to other things.

After all, Charlie hasn't drawn very heavily upon himself for laughs. He has made relatively few pictures. It is Harold Lloyd who has set himself the goosh-awful pace. Since comedies have been comedies no star has ever invented so many gags. He seems to have an almost inexhaustible reservoir; but an end must come some time.

Dick Barthelmess

Unless Richard Barthelmess gets out a good picture in the very near future he is due for a pretty bad trimming.

This "Soul Fire" thing was a typical "actor's picture"—just such a one as an actor would pick for himself.

From the first reel to the last, the actors—especially the star—were wringing their hands and "emoting" all over the place. The very first "shot" of Dick in the picture showed him yearning and moaning; and he yearned and moaned without relief of any kind for eight or nine reels.

Too Much "Acting"

There was no intimacy to the picture; it was just "acting" from one end to the other. The director discarded a cardinal principle that governs the telling of this kind of story, which is that you must show the characters in their own close environment, in their own rooms for choice.

Silent Music

Another thing that doomed this picture before it started: Its climaxes depended upon music that couldn't be heard.

To my way of thinking, there is nothing so absurd and unreal as to see a movie actor sit down at a piano, roll up his eyes to the chandeliers, ramble his fingers around the keys, while everybody in the room begins to weep and remember their lost childhood. Yet you can't hear a sound.

Twaddle About Souls

There are too many pictures about souls, anyhow. Too many pictures with attempted matrimonial problems.

Sooner or later they will all come back to moving pictures that move.

This picture of Dick's might have come very near to filling the bill because of its atmosphere—Port Said and the South Seas.

Only you can't make folks believe in a hero who goes mooning around the world gazing into space and clawing at his front hair because he can't write a symphony or something.

Valentino's Problem

Rudolph Valentino's future has been a matter of furious debate.

It has been a question as to whether he should continue to be a sheik and a lady-killer, or whether he should abruptly abandon the whole he-vamp idea and undertake an entirely different line of stories.

That was really the question between the two stories that were debated.

Had he gone through with the plan to make "The Bronze Collar" he would have been seen with a dirty face, but an honest soul. After much mental travail, this project was abandoned.

"The Black Eagle," which he is making now, will show him once again as a squire of dames.

Women Resented Him

No one would attempt to deny that Rudolph has had a severe setback.

One of the very big directors told me it was his opinion that Rudy had been all but assassinated professionally by the too open attempt to advertise him as a lady-charmer.

It is like the man who comes roaring into a room with the remark: "Oh, my goosh, I have just heard the funniest story! Oh, gee, you'll just die when I tell it to you! Oh, oh, this is the goosh-awfullest scream I ever heard!" And when that fellow starts to tell you his funny story, you stiffen your spine and resolve to die before a snicker shall escape you.

According to the opinion of this director, that has been Rudolph's trouble. He was touted so heavily as "the great lover of the screen" that he has aroused the resentment—not so much of men as of women.

Wise Ramon

That's one noticeable thing about Ramon Novarro: He has never allowed himself to be referred to as "a great lover" or a matinee hero.

Ramon has been wise in resolutely sticking to the determination to stand or fall simply as an actor.

At that, I imagine it has been more a matter of instinctive good taste than hard business judgment.

The dignity and pride of his Mexican ancestry would not allow him to be a he-vamp.

I know nearly all the actors of the screen, and a lot of them are fine men; but I know none of finer character—none with a finer sensitiveness than Novarro. The screen is the better because he has been on it and of it.

Norma Shearer

If another Norma Shearer should happen to amble into Hollywood, she would be mobbed by overeager producers.

I hear more sighs for Miss Shearer than for any other actress in Hollywood.

She has an air of culture and distance that is in huge demand. That thoroughbred race-horse air. Blue blood, aristocracy and polite scorn. It is to be found in several of the older women of the screen, but in few of the younger ones.

It happens that she just exactly fits into a number of big pictures now being made; but, being under contract to one studio, she is not available to the others.

A Greater Pre-View!

Beginning Sunday, August 2, 1925

POPULAR demand for the third time has impelled the enlargement and improvement of the Los Angeles Times' beautiful motion-picture magazine, which, beginning with the next issue, will be standard newspaper size, thus permitting more striking and artistic pictorial presentations.

Simultaneously with this improvement, another step forward will be made in changing the day of publication from Wednesday to Sunday, thereby meeting the urgent request of thousands of Times readers.

Printed in the film capital of the world, The Pre-View is unique among newspaper supplements, furnishing a weekly pictorial trip through the strange and fascinating realm of screenland. It is also unique because of the large number of copies which Times readers remail every week to eastern friends, to whom the making of motion pictures is California's most interesting industry. In its enlarged and improved form, The Pre-View will be sent away in greater quantities than ever.

In a nutshell, this newest dividend for Times readers will be an enlarged feature for an enlarged audience.

The next Pre-View will be issued on Sunday, August 2, as a beautiful rotogravure supplement with the

"Stella Maris" Again!

Two very definite personalities seem to be in evidence in Mary Philbin's portrayal in "Stella Maris." As Stella she is a very different person from the little ill-used waif whom she also plays. Above, Mary is seen with Elliott Dexter, while at the far left a tense scene with Gladys Brockwell is viewed. The pictures at the right and below show Mary as the little slavey.

ANOTHER old favorite has returned to the screen.

The revival of "Stella Maris," with Mary Philbin playing a dual role, brings to mind the fact that several years ago Mary Pickford starred in this story.

Dual roles were not as frequent then as now. And the sight of Mary as the poor slavey, as well as the little rich girl, caused quite a stir.

What success the picture will have today is a matter of doubt. Revivals, as a rule, are seldom a hit. However, Miss Philbin's portrayal of the little, ugly underling promises to be very interesting. In fact, the girl of the sensitive features and curly hair has completely disappeared, and in her place is a drab, pitiful waif.

Such great things have been prophesied for Miss Philbin that one wonders whether in "Stella Maris" the fulfillment will be found. Declared a girl of untold possibilities, she has as yet only had one truly outstanding chance, and that was in "Merry-Go-Round."

to a too-hasty planting of the dramatic points in the plot. The individual touches are very clever, and the idea a winner for this type of story, but it should have been more carefully treated.

Florence Vidor is the principal featured player as the girl, and is, throughout, excellent. In many ways, she has seldom disclosed more conviction and animation in her acting. Edward Everett Horton is well cast as John Smith No. 2, the dyspeptic, and his comedy is on the whole very amusing. The only fault is that it is inclined to be overdone at times.

Helen Jerome Eddy and Z. Wall Covington contribute much to the humor. Other good characterizations are those of Gertrude Claire and Ed Brady. John Roche is John Smith No. 1. Anne Schaeffer and Erwin Connelly appear.

The adaptation was made by Walter Woods from the stage play, "The Nest Egg," by Anne Caldwell, and the continuity is by Anthony Coldeway. The film was photographed by Karl Brown. —[Edwin Schallert.

HEROES UNDER FIRE

touched him on the screen. He has never won the girl, and yet he quite frequently attains a romantic interest for the fans.

In "Siege," a Universal picture, McDermott, playing the role of a mute who hopelessly loves the heroine, is the most romantic figure of the picture, which is not at all the way things used to be, is it?

Popularity of Characterizations

All of which seems to indicate that the popular film ideal has changed. Sheer nobility has ceased to interest in the modern books, the modern thought, and apparently the films have followed suit.

The one man I have met who plays villains and yet longs to be a hero is Walter McGrail. Unlike all the others, he does not see the fascination of playing a character type, and would much rather win the girl.

However, he is a notable exception. For whenever film men are gathered together most of them seem to agree that they would far rather play the role with a menace totally apart from the love interest rather than enter the stereotyped catalogued role of the one who "wins the girl." And in that they seem rather wise.

What has caused this changing age of the masculine character on the screen is still a puzzle. The most logical reason, of course, would seem that the public, now thoroughly aroused to the longing for more reality, has, by its very change of thought, altered the film type.

But whether the public has influenced the industry, or the films have affected public taste, the fact is certainly established that, not only have character leads and character villains been steadily taking the spotlight away from the so-called "straight hero," but even the hero himself has changed.

STELLA THE STAR-GAZER

thoughtful, so genuinely kind, to everybody with whom he has any dealings.

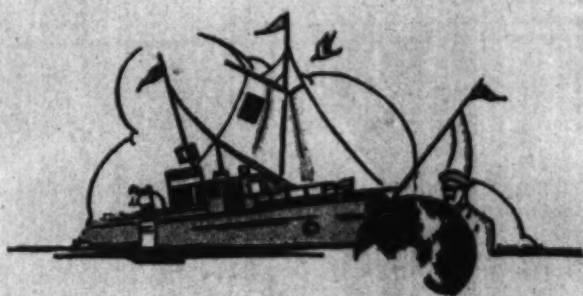

"By the way, Harold and Mildred put off their European trip solely on account of the baby! Little Mildred Gloria will be old enough to travel next year, Mildred says, and they cannot either of them bear to go away and leave the child, even with Mildred's mother and the baby's wonderful nurse."

MARY PICKFORD was there, looking lovely in an especially becoming evening gown. And Douglas Fairbanks was so happy about the way in which Charlie's picture had gone over that he was shaking hands delightedly with everybody.

"I suppose," whispered Stella, "that it must be awfully hard for Doug to keep from bounding right over a chair!"

"Well, that's mighty nice of him," I said, "especially since, at this very moment, he has 'Black Pirates' on his mind."

As we left Stella whispered, "Maybe it was the humanizing effect of 'The Gold Rush,' or maybe it was the lovely influence of the Goldwyns, but 'Gold Rush' or Goldwyns, anyhow I didn't see a single glare nor overhear a catty word at that party!"

No one would attempt to deny that Rudolph has had a severe setback.

One of the very big directors told me it was his opinion that Rudy had been all but assassinated professionally by the too open attempt to advertise him as a lady-charmer.

It is like the man who comes roaring into a room with the remark: "Oh, my gosh, I have just heard the funniest story! Oh, gee, you'll just die when I tell it to you! Oh, oh, this is the gosh-awfullest scream I ever heard!" And when that fellow starts to tell you his funny story, you stiffen your spine and resolve to die before a snicker shall escape you.

According to the opinion of this director, that has been Rudolph's trouble. He was touted so heavily as "the great lover of the screen" that he has aroused the resentment—not so much of men as of women.

Wise Ramon

That's one noticeable thing about Ramon Novarro: He has never allowed himself to be referred to as "a great lover" or a matinee hero.

Ramon has been wise in resolutely sticking to the determination to stand or fall simply as an actor.

At that, I imagine it has been more a matter of instinctive good taste than hard business judgment.

The dignity and pride of his Mexican ancestry would not allow him to be a he-vamp.

I know nearly all the actors of the screen, and a lot of them are fine men; but I know none of finer character—none with a finer sensitiveness than Novarro. The screen is the better because he has been on it and of it.

Norma Shearer

If another Norma Shearer should happen to amble into Hollywood, she would be mobbed by overeager producers.

I hear more sighs for Miss Shearer than for any other actress in Hollywood.

She has an air of culture and distance that is in huge demand. That thoroughbred race-horse air. Blue blood, aristocracy and polite scorn. It is to be found in several of the older women of the screen, but in few of the younger ones.

It happens that she just exactly fits into a number of big pictures now being made; but, being under contract to one studio, she is not available to the others.

At the Gold Rush Party With Stella, the Star-Gazer

By GRACE KINGSLEY

"DID you ever see such a bunch of nobility in your life?" exclaimed Stella ecstatically. Stella is an American, but she does adore the face cards of nobility just the same.

"Of course," she says, "I'm an American; but I like Russian caviar and French perfume and German pancakes. don't I? Well, the nobility is just another imported luxury. don't you see? Of course, it is true that you can't go into a picture studio nowadays without having to be careful not to stumble over a bunch of counts and countesses; still I always get a thrill out of it. Gloria Swanson was a wee bit late in bringing her count home, wasn't she? Supposing Barbara La Marr had waited a few moments between husbands—she would have been a sensation in those days towing home an Italian count, wouldn't she?"

"It won't do to overdo this count-marrying business, now, will it? Because you know very well there won't be the least bit of a thrill in talking to a girl we used to go swimming with or shopping with, and calling her 'Countess.' We shall forget that she is a countess, and then what's the use of her being one?"

Stella and I were at Sammy Goldwyn's party, following the opening of Charlie Chaplin's picture, "The Gold Rush."

"I never," said Stella, "want to go to another big picture opening or party again!"

"Why, Stella," I said, "aren't you having the time of your life?"

"That's just it," she answered. "I never expect to see another such opening—and I'm sure there will never be another picture so good as 'The Gold Rush'—and this party is just too glorious. Why, there are not only Gloria and her French count husband, who really is charming; but there is that sweet Duchess of Sutherland, to the purple born yet as natural as a drink of water! She is staying with Mary Pickford, you know. Then there is another count, whose name I didn't learn, who is a very big count, but a very little picture actor, and there is that Russian prince, Vladimir Lazarus."

Frances Howard (above,) Stella discovers, is just the type of hostess one has been searching for all one's partying career. And at her party it was distinctly noticeable, according to Stella, that the expression on Norma Talmadge's face is growing constantly lovelier. Hollywood's most recent newlyweds, Helen Ferguson and William Russell, are glimpsed at the left.

MRS. GOLDWYN turned out to be a perfectly lovely hostess, so gracious and pretty. She is Frances Howard on the screen, you know. She isn't one of those blustering hostesses who descends upon you and wears you all out with hospitality before you get your wraps off. Quite the contrary. She was so quiet that Stella committed an awful faux pas. Mrs. Goldwyn was

and good features through which to let it shine."

When Mrs. Goldwyn never for a moment revealed if she was really—just said, "Perhaps I'm a rather bad one!" with a sweet little smile that, while it plunged Stella into the depths of remorse, at least gave her a chance to duck out of the way and recover herself. Thereafter Mrs. Goldwyn seemed to be just everywhere and nowhere, and Stella says that she learned about being a hostess from her. Samuel Goldwyn may scold a bit when you meet him outside his home, but he surely knows how to make everybody happy who comes to his parties.

WE met Buster Collier, and were talking to him about the very first picture he ever did, when he was a little boy. He said that he has a print of it, and he means to keep it to show to his youngsters, if ever he has any. Especially if he has boys. Because it is all about a small boy who fought Indians and saved a fort, and did all the things which small boys are always dreaming of doing.

"DO you know," began Stella thoughtfully, as she stood looking at Norma Talmadge after we had said hello to her and she was swept away by other people, "I think Norma is growing prettier every day. I don't know what it is, but there is a softer expression in her face and a lovely light in her eyes. A woman past 25 simply can't be pretty without that look, no matter what her features are. It is an inner glow—not physical at all. But, of course, some women, like Norma Talmadge, are equipped with nice eyes

SPEAKING of nice people, maybe Harold Lloyd is the nicest boy in the world. Nobody but the nicest boy in the world could possibly have congratulated Charlie Chaplin as Lloyd did, on his triumph, especially if that boy happens to be a comedy genius also.

"Mildred Davis, his wife, tells me," confided Stella, "that nobody who hasn't lived with Harold can possibly know just how truly good he is. He is so

"Stella Maris" Again!

Two very definite personalities seem to be in evidence in Mary Philbin's portrayal in "Stella Maris." As Stella she is a very different person from the little ill-used waif whom she also plays. Above, Mary is seen with Elliott Dexter, while at the far left a tense scene with Gladys Brockwell is viewed. The pictures at the right and below show Mary as the little slavey.

ANOTHER old favorite has returned to the screen.

The revival of "Stella Maris," with Mary Philbin playing a dual role, brings to mind the fact that several years ago Mary Pickford starred in this story.

Dual roles were not as frequent then as now. And the sight of Mary as the poor slavey, as well as the little rich girl, caused quite a stir.

What success the picture will have today is a matter of doubt. Revivals, as a rule, are seldom a hit. However, Miss Philbin's portrayal of the little, ugly underling promises to be very interesting. In fact, the girl of the sensitive features and curly hair has completely disappeared, and in her place is a drab, pitiful waif.

Such great things have been prophesied for Miss Philbin that one wonders whether in "Stella Maris" the fulfillment will be found. Declared a girl of untold possibilities, she has as yet only had one truly outstanding chance, and that was in "Merry-Go-Round."

THE topic that seems to come up burning for discussion this week is Charlie Chaplin's new comedy, "The Gold Rush." In many ways it is the most skillful picture he ever made; evidently it is to be a box-office sensation.

Critics Ag'in It

I find that nearly all the professional critics sniff at it.

They think it is far below "Shoulder Arms" and "The Kid."

They say that it is barren, spread on too thick, and lacks zest. Laughs, they say, are too scarce, gags too old. Some of them insist that if Charlie Chaplin hadn't made it, the comedy would have bored the audiences to tears.

Actors Admire

Actors and directors, on the other hand, are crazy over it.

They point out this and that which I shall outline later on, and say it bespeaks a technique that never has been equalled in the history of the screen.

A New Chaplin

Personally, I was interested in the picture; but I was more interested in Charlie Chaplin.

I have never seen him like this before. The Charlie Chaplin of this picture is a new Charlie Chaplin; yet an older and a sadder Chaplin.

His acting—his clowning—seems to lack a zip and an unction it has usually had before; but, on the other hand, it has a depth I have never seen before.

Genius Sweating

To me the chief fault of the picture was a sort of self-conscious effort.

It was genius struggling for effect. In other pictures Charlie was funny just the way champagne bubbles. In this picture he is funny because he knows what would look funny.

For the first time, he seems to stand apart and pull the strings.

Candidly, I think Charlie is a greater artist than he has been before; but he has lost something that will never come back to him.

In a way he is at the end of his journey; but he may be starting out on another and bigger voyage. I don't know. A very critical time in his life is coming.

"Epic Sweep"

Before the picture was shown to the public I used to get excited bulletins from various persons who had seen it in the projection-room. They said that it had an epic sweep bigger than "The Covered Wagon."

I failed to see it in the picture. There was more sweep than epic.

Charlie used a lot of people in his Klondike scenes, but you didn't feel any epic in it. You didn't have the feel of civilization being hurled out into the snows. To tell the truth, I didn't feel much drama in the hunt for gold.

Raymond Griffith Says—

Raymond Griffith was one of the comedians who was knocked into a heap of gasping admiration by the Chaplin picture.

What he saw in it would not ordinarily be noticed by a casual theatergoer.

He said that the place where Charlie was hit in the face by the snowballs, at the cabin door, was the most extraordinary bit of technique he had ever seen on the screen.

Mr. Griffith pointed out that you felt sure you had seen some one throw those snowballs; whereas you really hadn't. They just came out of nowhere. This remarkable illusion was accomplished entirely by expert "timing."

Great Acting

Another place that excited Mr. Griffith's admiration was Charlie's first entrance into the Klondike dance-hall—a little, lonely, forlorn figure. Everywhere there were hands extended; but none for him. Charlie has left his stamp on the screen as perhaps the greatest actor of his time, but Griffith maintains that this scene must be recognized as the flood-tide of Charlie's genius.

The Oceana Roll

One thing that especially impressed me about the picture was the dance of the bread rolls.

You will remember that the little tramp had invited a group of music-hall girls to a New Year's dinner, and had starved and saved to get the money to do it.

They forgot all about it; so Charlie sat at his decorated table alone.

Presently he fell asleep and dreamed that they were there, and that he was the proud host at a wonderful dinner. To entertain them he stabbed two forks into bread rolls, and made the rolls dance like little feet.

This, I maintain, was the cleverest pantomime ever put on the screen.

The wonder of it was this, that, with these two little mimic feet, he created a character, and that character was not Charlie Chaplin.

Being Funny

It is a question whether any comedian can keep on indefinitely being funny.

Although Charlie is perhaps as funny in this picture as he ever has been before, there is a hint that the game of clowning is beginning to pall on him; that his mind turns to other things.

After all, Charlie hasn't drawn very heavily upon himself for laughs. He has made relatively few pictures. It is Harold Lloyd who has set himself the goosh-awful pace. Since comedies have been comedies no star has ever invented so many gags. He seems to have an almost inexhaustible reservoir; but an end must come some time.

Dick Barthelmess

Unless Richard Barthelmess gets out a good picture in the very near future he is due for a pretty bad trimmings.

This "Soul Fire" thing was a typical "actor's picture"—just such a one as an actor would pick for himself.

From the first reel to the last, the actors—especially the star—were wringing their hands and "emoting" all over the place. The very first "shot" of Dick in the picture showed him yearning and moaning; and he yearned and moaned without relief of any kind for eight or nine reels.

Too Much "Acting"

There was no intimacy to the picture; it was just "acting" from one end to the other. The director discarded a cardinal principle that governs the telling of this kind of story, which is that you must show the characters in their own close environment, in their own rooms for choice.

Silent Music

Another thing that doomed this picture before it started: Its climaxes depended upon music that couldn't be heard.

To my way of thinking, there is nothing so absurd and unreal as to see a movie actor sit down at a piano, roll up his eyes to the chandeliers, ramble his fingers around the keys, while everybody in the room begins to weep and remember their lost childhood. Yet you can't hear a sound.

Twaddle About Souls

There are too many pictures about souls, anyhow. Too many pictures with attempted matrimonial problems.

Sooner or later they will all come back to moving pictures that move.

This picture of Dick's might have come very near to filling the bill because of its atmosphere—Port Said and the South Seas.

Only you can't make folks believe in a hero who goes mooning around the world gazing into space and clawing at his front hair because he can't write a symphony or something.

Valentino's Problem

Rudolph Valentino's future has been a matter of furious debate.

It has been a question as to whether he should continue to be a sheik and a lady-killer, or whether he should abruptly abandon the whole he-vamp idea and undertake an entirely different line of stories.

That was really the question between the two stories that were debated.

Had he gone through with the plan to make "The Bronze Collar" he would have been seen with a dirty face, but an honest soul. After much mental travail, this project was abandoned.

"The Black Eagle," which he is making now, will show him once again as a squire of dames.

Women Resented Him

No one would attempt to deny that Rudolph has had a severe setback.

One of the very big directors told me it was his opinion that Rudy had been all but assassinated professionally by the too open attempt to advertise him as a lady-charmer.

It is like the man who comes roaring into a room with the remark: "Oh, my goosh, I have just heard the funniest story! Oh, gee, you'll just die when I tell it to you! Oh, oh, this is the goosh-awfullest scream I ever heard!" And when that fellow starts to tell you his funny story, you stiffen your spine and resolve to die before a snicker shall escape you.

According to the opinion of this director, that has been Rudolph's trouble. He was touted so heavily as "the great lover of the screen" that he has aroused the resentment—not so much of men as of women.

Wise Ramon

NEW PICTURES

Plot Idea Clever

"MARRY ME"
(Paramount)

James Cruze's happy facility in the choice of an idea for a picture again discloses itself in "Marry Me." The production offers a very light plot, based rather cleverly on the circumstances of mistaken identity. The Cruze treatment of a theme has been much more convincing on occasion, but the assumption is somewhat justified that this particular feature will have quite an appeal for its values as entertainment.

COMEDY nearly always shines forth in the smaller Cruze productions, and "Marry Me" is no exception in respect to its quality of amusingness. The story is told with genial charm that is refreshing and wholesome, and although dramatically the picture is not entirely sound, the deft and engaging character of the idea cannot be denied.

A romance is the starting point of the production—a romance between a country school-teacher and a chap from a neighboring city whom one never sees on the screen again after the first sequence wherein he proposes to the girl. His name, which is important to the plot, is John Smith.

When he tries to prevail on her to marry him, she delays the answer, out of feminine caprice, promising him that she will let him know in the morning.

She actually does do this. But the method that she selects is rather hazardous. She writes the answer on an egg, and instead of this being delivered in accordance with her intentions, it is placed instead in a crate which is shipped away.

Not receiving any answer to his proposal, the man takes it for granted that the girl has merely been flirting with him, and departs.

The action then shifts to several years later. The girl is still waiting for her admirer's return, and is in danger of being relegated to spinsterhood. She has her chances to be married to another man of the country town, but prefers to delay this in the hope that John Smith may come back to claim her.

Finally she receives a telegram. It is signed John Smith, and it informs her that the sender is arriving the next day. Naturally, she assumes that it is the Smith that she knows.

The news gets around town, and everybody prepares for a wedding. Presents are showered on the girl by the villagers.

Right in the midst of the excitement and celebration, the Smith of the telegram arrives. He is a nervous, fidgety, dyspeptic individual. The girl's romantic interest in the name of Smith is totally unknown to him, because he is just one of a half million or more John Smiths in America.

This particular Smith is mainly concerned with a legal prosecution against egg vendors. He attributes his digestive difficulties to the antiqueness of certain cold-storage eggs. He wants the girl to be a witness in the trial, because he received the egg signed with her name directed to the other Smith. He has no intention whatsoever of marrying her or anybody else.

What with all the hubbub about her marriage, the girl's predicament is more than puzzling when the wrong Smith appears on the scene. It represents the shattering of her hopes held for years. It looks as if it would make her the joke of the village.

At this juncture a feminine relative of hers comes to the rescue. She insists that the girl accompany Smith to the city, and leave her to do the explaining. The pair are showered with rice and shoes, and given a triumphal send-off at the railroad station.

From there on the picture is a series of complications, of greater or less interest, depicting how the pair are compromised through the too-active interest of their friends while they are staying in the city. The episode of the egg trial is particularly amusing, and is well carried out when the girl announces in the presence of two of the villagers, who are among the onlookers, that she is single. They naturally have every reason to believe that she should be married at this particular juncture.

Some of Cruze's pictures are really too rapidly made to be entirely satisfactory, and the faults that one detects in this particular film seem to be due

The Knell of the Card Catalogue Hero

Popularity of Straight Hero Roles Has Given Way to the Preference for "Meaty" Parts, Heavily Flavored With Characterization—The "Other Man" Often Carries Sympathy of the Audience

By KATHERINE LIPKE

IT CERTAINLY looks as if nobility had gone out of fashion on the screen. Not only have film stories changed radically in this respect, but the leading men have changed also. They no longer seem to enjoy playing the conventional hero of the picture with that zest of years ago. Instead, they have developed quite an inclination for "villainizing."

In fact, in this season's pictures it is difficult to know just where a favored player is to be found. He may figure in the love story as hero and appear in the final close-up or he may be the menace of the picture—the "other man." Since the playing of character roles became the vogue there seem to be few film players who desire to play the mere hero.

And no wonder! For, alas, heroes in the films are distinctly not what they used to be. As Ben Lyon, that attractive young leading man, expresses it, "We get the girl, but the other man

Clive Brook, as well as a majority of the featured men in films, varies now between typical leading men and light heavies. There are very few who can in that picture seemed to be a descendant of that epochal film, "A Woman of Paris," when Adolphe Menjou first revealed how sympathetic feeling can follow the man whose morals are negligible but whose charm is great.

Old Order Changes

Upon Menjou—and also upon Charlie Chaplin, who originated that fascinating role—rests the responsibility apparently for this changing romantic ideal. When "A Woman of Paris" was released it rather took our breath away to behold this so-gets the picture." This appears to be more or less true.

The romantic interest in a picture does not inevitably follow the love story as was the case some time ago. Then the man who figured in the close-up was the center of all interest. His popularity was rated by his ability to make love on the screen. Those were the good old days when heroes were in fashion.

New Romantic Type

The fans now seem to weave a romantic interest about a character in a picture whose place lies entirely out of the realm of the love story. "De-classe," with Corinne Griffith, was an interesting example of this. Clive Brook, in the role of a New York Jew of uncertain morals, was so much more appealing than the conventional hero that it was amazing. A few years ago the sight of "the other man" luring a beautiful heroine away from the paths of virtue would have caused a reaction against him, while in "De-classe" he be listed under the heading of one type. Neil Hamilton, that young D. W. Griffith leading man, is certainly just the sort for a romantic hero. Yet in "Men and Women," in which he appeared for Paramount, he was a great success as a sophisticated heavy. Not only was he a success, but he was distinctly romantic in appeal.

He represented a new romantic type. The sort which has to do with suave sophistication, uplifted eyebrows and artful genteel villainy. His character we who know our villains of melodramas as we should realized that not one of the old school could possess that human, engaging, rather lovable personality.

Lewis Stone and Marc McDermott

Lewis Stone is one of the most finished performers in this new liberal sense of acting. He is a distinguished feature player, whose appearance in a picture has caused many a romantic murmur and yet he is far from the old-sophisticated "man" of the world, with all the less commendable traits, appearing so human, so attractive that he emerged a popular romantic figure.

He couldn't be catalogued as a hero, certainly — nor yet as a villain. For time conventional type of hero.

Not being under contract to any one motion-picture firm, he goes about varying constantly in character. In "Fine Clothes" he appears the sophisticated man of the world, trying to lure Alma Rubens into an affair, while in "The Talker" he is an American businessman husband, slightly worn out by wrangles with his wife. Neither is a typical hero role, and yet he is to many the modern romantic ideal.

The vogue of free-lancing among the players that prevailed during the past season has much to do with giving impulse to the variety of the newer roles and the inability to catalogue them under any one type. Those not under contract can now choose the parts they wish to play and they are careful to have a great variety.

The great motion-picture horror of late seems to be this getting in a rut and becoming settled as a type. And so those who are able sidestep gracefully. Marc McDermott is a player who insists upon knowing all about a picture before he signs for it.

He does not do hero types, but, instead, is to be seen in a great variety of films as sympathetic characters or as the heavy. Romance has never

Introducing New Hero Types

Without doubt, the present vogue for sophisticated characterizations is going to bring Lowell Sherman strongly to the fore in his new starring feature, "Satan in Sables." He has heretofore always been consigned to portrayals of villainy. Pauline Garon (above) is one of the principals in his support in the new picture.

Behold Lowell Sherman a new hero! In "Satan in Sables" he will be shown as a Russian nobleman.

He was the villain in "Way Down East"—was Lowell Sherman, and perhaps therefore you will recall his screen personality. There is no doubt that it is an unforgettable one of the deep-dyed sort.

Now he has reformed. He is playing the hero in "Satan in Sables," the new Warner Brothers production. And the interesting question is whether he will be able to make this transition to a romantic role.

Sherman's appearances on the screen have not been frequent. The heavy in Mabel Normand's "Molly-O" and the French king, Louis XV, in "Monsieur Beaucaire" are among his more important interpretations, beside, of course, the Griffith feature.

His fame on the stage, though, is certain. He has established himself as one of the foremost stars during the past few years. Wherever, therefore, his footlight reputation has been made known it may be said that his venture into film stardom will be keenly awaited. Elsewhere, too, it is likely that he will have a great vogue, because of his fine acting ability.

FROM here, and there, and everywhere—they arrive. New entrants in the films! It would seem that the pictures were already filled to overflowing with newcomers. However, there apparently is always "room for one more."

Not long ago the family of O'Neil was unknown in pictures, and now behold, not only is Sally a featured player, but her sister Sue has been signed to do leads in Hal Roach comedies.

Florence Ann Ulric, the sister of the famous Lenore, has also arrived here with intentions for a cinema career.

Formerly a dancer with Ziegfeld, Louise Brooks has now signed with Paramount and will be seen soon in "The Street of Forgotten Men," while Winona Winter has left musical comedies and will appear in forthcoming Hunt Stromberg productions.

The men are also represented in the latest influx. Featured as the latest Cecil De Mille find, Robert Ames is shortly to appear as a leading man. Leslie Fenton, lately signed by Fox, has roles in "Havoc" and "Lazybones," and appears destined for a very big hit.

BLAME FOR WRECK NOT DETERMINED

Espee Quiz Fails to Fix Responsibility for Crash That Cost Two Lives

SANTA BARBARA, July 21.—The board of inquiry appointed to investigate the cause of the Southern Pacific Railroad wreck at Sudden station early Sunday morning in which one man was killed and five injured concluded on all-day session this evening without reaching any finding. Members of the board said the taking of testimony from trainmen and others will probably continue through tomorrow afternoon.

Although no report was made public by the board, it is regarded doubtful that any blame for the accident will be attached to the Culp, engineer of the special troop train which crashed into the freight train.

The board of inquiry consists of F. M. Worthington, superintendent of the coast division of the Southern Pacific Co., B. J. Morrison, master mechanic of the coast division; E. C. Morrison, division engineer, and W. J. Morrison, division engineer.

William F. F. Lemon, representing the Santa Barbara Commission, and Henry Kirch of the Interstate Commerce Commission, also attended the hearing today.

Man Found Dead Believed to be Rum Informer

(By A. P. MURPHY WIRE)

MONTREY, July 21.—The body of a man believed to be Chris Gerich, Moss Landing fisherman, and supposed informant against a ring of rum runners operating in this vicinity, was found in a lagoon off Elkhorn Slough, near Moss Landing today, coincident with the issuance of warrants in San Francisco against a number of men believed to be involved in bootlegging activities in this region. The body was in such a condition that it could not be immediately identified.

A week ago the body of Mae Gerich, wife of Chris Gerich, was found on the beach some distance from Moss Landing. An autopsy could not determine whether she had been murdered or had met with an accident.

Finding of the bodies came as an aftermath of a pistol fight between a gang of rum runners and a citizen's posse, in which a member of the posse was killed.

Mexican Line's Bond Debt Near Billion Pesos

(By CARL EICHENBERG DISPATCH)

MEXICO CITY, July 21.—Five hundred million pesos, dating back some fifteen years, are owed to the original bondholders by the National Railways of Mexico, according to a statement issued tonight by Mariano Cabrera, director-general.

In addition to this interest on these bonds, amounting to 311,000,000 pesos, and 40,000 pesos for merchandise purchased during the last two years, has not been paid. These items, with the exception of the latter, are included in the Lamond agreement.

Cabrera declares that the railway is unable to make the monthly payment of 2,000,000 pesos to the bondholders, as planned. The request for a monthly loan of 1,000,000 pesos from the government is still pending before President Calles he added.

HAIR TURNING GRAY?

Many Restored to Youthful Color Without Dyes or Tonics

Are you prematurely gray? No woman likes to look older than she is. All have an aversion to hair dyes. Besides being objectionable dyes have to be resorted to weekly. A dye never comes close enough to the natural effect to escape detection.

Think what it would mean to regain your youthful appearance, with your hair actually growing from the roots in its natural color. This has been accomplished for many by Wilshire's "Ionaco." You can easily convince yourself whether or not it will do the same for you.

BACKED BY GAYLORD WILSHIRE

The "Ionaco" carries the personal backing and endorsement of Gaylord Wilshire, internationally famous as the originator of the Wilshire District. So confident is Mr. Wilshire in the "Ionaco" that he says:

MONEY BACK IF "IONACO" FAILS TO RESTORE GRAY HAIR

To any person with prematurely gray hair who will purchase an "Ionaco" and, after a thorough trial, finds that it does not restore the hair to its natural color, the purchase price will cheerfully be refunded.

The "Ionaco" has also been proved to be wonderfully successful in relieving sickness and pain. Treatments are very easy to take. No drugs, chemicals, baths, catheters, diet, massage, vibrators, sweating, exercises, or other unpleasant treatment. Wear your ordinary clothing. Sit in a comfortable chair. Read your newspaper for ten minutes. That's all.

If you want to know the meaning of real rejuvenation—rejuvenation in appearance, in health, and in natural functions—investigate the Ionaco today. Don't be senile.

FREE TREATMENT

For a limited time we are making this liberal offer: To anyone who will bring a clipping of this advertisement to our offices we will give one treatment of the "Ionaco" free of charge. Office hours from 9 to 4.

CANADA ATTEMPTS HEMP CULTIVATION

(By CARL EICHENBERG DISPATCH)

WINNIPEG (Man.) July 21.—Cultivation of hemp as a farm crop to provide binder twine for Canada's grain crops is being tried out in Manitoba. A Winnipeg farmer has distributed 700 bushels of hemp seed imported from Holland to farmers in the Red River Valley in quantities sufficient to plant twenty-five acre plots to the crop on each farm selected. If the project proves successful, experts point out, the Dominion may be able to grow enough hemp to supply binder twine for all its needs. At present Canada has to depend on imports for practically all of the twine its farmers use at harvest time.

THAW WILL FIGHT TO KEEP $600,000 GIFT

(By A. P. MURPHY WIRE)

NEW YORK, July 21.—Lawrence C. Thaw, sued by his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, for the return of a "gift" of $600,000, declared today the legal action has been indicated by others and he would oppose it to the utmost. "The gift which my grandmother made to me in January was made voluntarily," Mr. Thaw said.

SMALL DRAWS SUIT OVER ART WORK BEGINS

Critic Accuses Wealthy Collector

Up in Arms Over Small Fund Move

From Fire at City Hall; Guest in Evening

Charles H. Randall, who is suing the City of Los Angeles for $100,000, has filed a complaint in the superior court today, charging that the city had wrongfully taken possession of a painting by Thomas Gainsborough, which he claims is worth $200,000.

The painting, which is a portrait of a man, was taken from the collection of the city by Randall, who is a wealthy collector of art. He claims that the city had no right to take the painting, and that he is entitled to its return and the full value of the work.

The city, on the other hand, claims that the painting was found in its possession and that it has no obligation to return it. The case is expected to be a long and costly one, and it is likely to attract considerable public attention.

ASSESSED VALUATION FOR COUNTY PROPERTY MOUNTS $193,852,283 DURING YEAR

An increase of $193,852,283 in the assessed valuation of property in Los Angeles county during the last year is shown in figures announced by County Assessor Hopkins. The total assessed valuation this year, as of March 1, is $2,910,076,088, compared with $2,716,223,805 for 1924.

On this basis, the actual value of property in Los Angeles county is approximately $6,000,000,000, because the assessed valuation is only 50 per cent on a conservative estimate of the real value.

The largest increase in individual items was that of property improvements, estimated this year to total $127,049,835. This total represents more than 100,000 new buildings.

Real estate valuations increased $66,554,925 during the year, but personal property decreased $70,000,000 in value in the county. In the city personal-property valuation increased $4,000,000.

These figures are subject to revision as they will be sent to the Board of Supervisors, sitting as a board of equalization, to hear complaints.

The tax levy on the assessment will be determined in September after municipal and school budgets have been presented and approved.

BALLOT RECOUNT BEGINS

Votes Being Checked in Fitzpatrick Election Contest Filed by Carl I. Jacobson

The tedious task of recounting approximately 10,000 ballots cast in the Thirteenth Councilmanic District at the city election, June 2, last, was begun yesterday in Judge Collier's court after the judge ordered a recount based on the contest of the election of Joseph F. Fitzpatrick.

The contest was filed by Carl I. Jacobson, "write-in" candidate, who created a sensation in local politics by his showing at the election. Jacobson, according to the official vote compiled by City Clerk Dominguez, polled just twelve less votes than Fitzpatrick.

Jacobson asserted in his petition for a recount that votes which had been cast for him were not counted for him and that votes which should have been counted for him were not counted for him.

The recount is being held in Judge Collier's court, and it is expected to continue for several days.

INCE STAR WILL WED AGAIN

Business Agent Wins Screen Actress

Wanda Hawley

Wanda Hawley, screen actress, is preparing to launch her second honeymoon on the sea of marital adventure. This report of long standing was confirmed yesterday when a marriage license was issued to the popular star and Jay Stuart Wilkinson, general manager of the Embassy Pictures Corporation, who has been her business representative since she left Leahy's almost three years ago.

The wedding will take place at 11 a. m., the 28th inst., in St. Mary's Church of the Angels, Rev. Neil Dodd officiating. Miss Hawley said last night. It will be strictly formal and only ten or twelve of the couple's intimate friends have been invited.

Following the service, the newlyweds will motor to Del Monte to spend a two weeks' honeymoon. They will return to Hollywood, where Wilkinson's offices are located and Miss Hawley has a contract to work in eleven pictures for John Ince.

"Our engagement is a real love match and we are going to be very happy," Miss Hawley said. "The romance started three years ago when I met Jay in the shadow of the Sphinx during the filming of a picture in Egypt for an English company."

The records show, however, that the coming marriage will be the second for each, and that Wilkinson is 33 years of age and Miss Hawley is 24.

A sensation in film circles was created October 31, 1922, when Miss Hawley obtained a decree of divorce from her first husband, Allen Barton Hawley, on grounds of cruelty.

NOVELIST ON MARRIAGE

Sheila Kaye-Smith, the English novelist, has remarried an old friend—about people being more haphazard in selecting a mate than in selecting a hat.

I don't believe this. A happy marriage couldn't be assured if a board of experts—including Clarence Darrow and W. J. Bryan—made the selection. No one could anticipate circumstances or conditions that might come up afterward.

But when pulling out the pathetic strip it is easy to begin slobbering.

When a woman writer is good, she is very, very good; but when she stops over, ohmigod, how she stops over!

Expert Demands Assessed Appraisal Fee

Reproduction of painting which plaintiff in $49,500 action declares to be an original by Gainsborough

DECLARING that a small painting less than eighteen inches square is a "masterpiece" of Thomas Gainsborough and worth $200,000, E. F. Squadrilli, art expert and critic, began suit before Judge O'Donnell yesterday to collect $49,500 from Bradford Perin, wealthy Pasadena art collector. Squadrilli asserts the sum sought represents the commission he was promised by Perin should the painting prove to be a Gainsborough.

The painting was taken from the collection of the city by Randall, who is a wealthy collector of art. He claims that the city had no right to take the painting, and that he is entitled to its return and the full value of the work.

The city, on the other hand, claims that the painting was found in its possession and that it has no obligation to return it. The case is expected to be a long and costly one, and it is likely to attract considerable public attention.

CRYER GIVEN DECISION BY HIGH COURT

Application to Compel Recount in May Primary Denied by Supreme Body

Former Judge Robert M. Clarke, who was Mayor Crier's attorney at the recent hearing in the Superior Court on the application of Mrs. Edna Allen for a recount of the votes cast for Mayor at the primary, May 2, yesterday notified the Mayor that the California Supreme Court has denied the application of Mrs. Allen for a recount of the votes cast for Mayor at the primary.

The court's decision was based on the fact that the application was not made in a timely manner, and that the court had no jurisdiction to order a recount.

The Mayor, who had been hoping for a recount, was disappointed by the court's decision.

AMUNDSEN TELLS OF FLIGHT

Complete Story of Arctic Trip Will Be Given in Diary Form in Next Sunday's "Times"

Next Sunday The Times will publish the complete story by Roald Amundsen of his heroic attempt to fly to the North Pole, a tale of adventure, which will have a high place in the annals of Arctic discovery, for the greater the peril, the greater the glory of those brave men who venture forth into the forbidden fringes of the world.

Amundsen's story, as told in diary form for readers of The Times, leaves no doubt as to the peril which these men met with a smiling face. On landing the ice wall closed upon them "like a lobster's claw," their planes were like two huge butterflies captured in the folds of paleo-cryptic ice.

While fighting their desperate battle against overwhelming odds, the imprisoned men "sang and joked and carried on with superb skill and pluck." For days they were so thickly enveloped in fog that to move a short distance was to be lost.

Finally Amundsen conveys a dramatically vivid impression of his feelings when at length, after many false starts, they rose "back again into the air at last," and of the "glorious triumph" which they achieved when they "put foot again on a hard mountain side" with a prayer of thanksgiving for the successful outcome of their great adventure.

Never before has so much ground been covered, and so much men within so brief a space. The airplane annihilates time and distance in reaching toward its goal, and triumphantly, frankly and convincingly, why it is not a complete success in Arctic exploration.

"Experience has shown the impossibility of finding a landing place and accurately determining the position of the Pole," he declares. "The attempt would be doubtful value and not worth the risk."

Yet the cruise was worth while.

BEAUTY SHOW FIGHT LOOMS

Long Beach Fractions for and Against Pulchritude Display Meet in Test of Strength Friday

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, July 21.—One of the hottest battles ever staged in the Long Beach Council chamber is promised for next Friday morning when church forces of this city line up on the one side and modernists take the opposing line in a fight over the proposed bathing beauty parade scheduled here for August 5.

Heated attacks on "immoral dress and indecent display" are expected from the church element and from the other side are expected some scathing remarks about long-haired, hypocritical domination of people's rights. The City Council, which has already turned a complete somersault on the question of "to be or not to be," having granted a permit for the parade and then turning around and rescinding that same permit, will be asked by the church forces to circumscribe the present plan of the parade backers to hold the parade on the city sidewalks instead of in the street.

Refused the use of the city streets for the proposed display of feminine pulchritude, the Long Beach Amusement League and others interested in the parade, displayed that there is no ordinance prohibiting the use of sidewalks for the forthcoming event.

Opponents of the affair, however, learned of the plan and today they went before the Council en masse and demanded that the city fathers pass an emergency ordinance banning parades from city sidewalks.

At previous sessions, members of the Council took sides, many of them condemning it as "immoral and indecent" and Councilman Filmore Condit, leader in all reform movements here, went on record as urging the Council to ban any sort of an exhibition that the city fathers would not want their wives or daughters to participate in.

At today's session, however, it was apparent that the Councilmen were not keen to become involved in the fight, which promises to set neighbor against neighbor and to arouse the fading blood of hundreds of Long Beach folks who declare that they were "stood for" the establishment of the bathing beauty parade.

He was accompanied by Col. J. Robert McWhorter, who was his executive officer when the Senator was a lieutenant-colonel in the Army Air Service in France and the commander of the aviation instruction center at Tusculum.

FOES OF DR. DYER PARDONED

Officers to Overlook Action of Sixty-seven Voting for Ousting Pastor Unless Congregation Acts

Wilshire Boulevard Congregational Church will extend the olive branch and not the rod of chastisement, its leading officers said yesterday to those of its members who met Monday night in what has been characterized as a "rump" meeting, which by vote of 97 to 2, called for discontinuance of the services of Pastor Frank Dyer.

"I do not believe," Dr. Dyer said, "that the church contemplates any action on the subject of the meeting Monday night, unless it should come up at the regular business meeting of the congregation set for the 28th inst."

H. S. Laughlin, the church's pastor, and its other principal executive officer, said:

"Some of those who met Monday night have the idea that we are to oust them from the church. No action of the kind is even thought of. We wish every one of them to remain in the congregation, and wish for all of us to be united together. Our membership committee will make no suggestion that they be expelled from the church, but I am certain that the committee, of which I am a member, will take no action against anyone on account of the meeting Monday night."

Dr. Dyer, Gould speaker, chairman of the church's board of deacons, will take no action against anyone on account of the meeting Monday night.

Heart Disease Takes H. J. Walz of Hollywood

Henry J. Walz, Hollywood Mason and a retired business man from Buffalo, N. Y., died early yesterday morning from heart disease.

Knights Templar funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Strother & Dayton undertaking parlors, Hollywood Boulevard.

Since he came here, six years ago, Mr. Walz, who was 62 years of age, has been a member of the Al Malakiah Shrine, Hollywood Commandery, Hollywood Shrine Club and Hollywood Masonic Club.

He leaves a widow and a daughter, Mrs. George Spencer Wice of this city. The widow resides at the family residence, 2032 Chahuena avenue.

He was born in Gotham on Sunday morning.

AIR MECCA HERE FORECAST

Senator Bingham Declares Los Angeles Has Advantage to Become Main Plane Terminal of West

"Los Angeles has the greatest advantage of any city on the Pacific Coast to become the main western air terminal," Senator Bingham declared yesterday during his inspection of the Los Angeles Airport at Griffith Park.

Senator Bingham, a member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, is making a general survey of the country's military establishments, with particular reference to army, navy and commercial aviation.

Senator Bingham pointed out that the air route from the East to Los Angeles by way of Dallas and Yuma is more feasible for commercial planes because the mountain passes are but 5000 feet high, while passes 10,000 feet high must be negotiated farther north.

DISPLAYS INTEREST

He manifested much interest in the projected air-mail line between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, as he is a member of the Senate Postoffice Committee, whose recommendation made the route possible.

He landed at the airport at noon, having been piloted over from Clover Field by Capt. P. D. Moulton, flight surgeon of the field. The morning was spent in inspecting the establishment at Clover Field under Lieut. Kenyon.

He was accompanied by Col. J. Robert McWhorter, who was his executive officer when the Senator was a lieutenant-colonel in the Army Air Service in France and the commander of the aviation instruction center at Tusculum.

MODEST PRESS AGENT WINNER

Publicity Man Convinces Council Bridge Over Street Will Be Necessary to Handle Crowds at "World's Greatest, Most Tremendous" etc., etc.

Press Agent Butler, who is employed to precede Barnum & Bailey's and Ringling Bros., combined, stupendous, glittering, marvelous, gigantic circus and blazon the way for the arrival of this traveling exhibition of the world's greatest, most tremendous, extraordinary aggregation of trained animals, acrobats, clowns and other features, arrived at the City Hall yesterday with the news that this circus would once more like to exhibit its wonders at Frazer Park from September 12 to 16.

So large is this show, said Signor Butler, modestly saying a few kind words about his entertainment, that it will spread over a great part of the landscape on both sides of Hill street at Washington street. What could be done to unite these parts of the entertainment?

That was the problem, as the City Council could not see its way clear toward closing Hill street as has been done in the past, since the street is now opened to Santa Barbara and is a major traffic highway.

So Councilman Sparks solved the problem by recommending that the circus bridge Hill street, temporarily, thus uniting the animal exhibition and other tents into one monster entertainment, to use one of Senator Butler's most modest adjectives.

The Council yesterday passed the permit with the proviso that the circus build the bridge over Hill street, for use when the crowds are arriving at the circus.

WORLD FLYER WILL APPEAR AS SPEEDER

Capt. Lowell Smith of "round-the-world flight fame, will appear before Police Judge Chambers today to explain why he was driving his car thirty-two miles an hour in a twenty-mile zone on Santa Monica Boulevard last Wednesday. The noted flyer was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Conkey at Santa Monica Boulevard and Wilton Place.

TODAY'S BIBLE TEXT

Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all His benefits; who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction. Psalm cxi, 4-6.

FIVE ARRESTED
IN LIQUOR RAID*Two Huge Stills Seized by Federal Dry Agents*Prisoners Assured Members of Produce Street Gang*Suspects Give Addresses at Fashionable Hostelry

A sensational raid by six Federal prohibition agents yesterday on the so-called "Produce-street gang" of moonshiners resulted in the arrest of five men charged with possession of apparatus for the universal manufacture of intoxicating liquor and the seizure of two 150-gallon stills being set up, one 150-gallon still in operation and a large quantity of mash.

The stills and mash were seized in a house at 147 North Utah street, which Federal agents declared was one of the most cleverly contrived stilling plants they ever have discovered in Southern California.

The top floor has been used for the mixing of the mash. A gravity system from the mash tank fed the stills which were placed on the floor below, where the bottling and decanting of the liquor were done.

HOTEL ADDRESSES
Three of the men taken into custody, Paul La Rosa, Jimmy Stella and Joe Brown, gave as their address the fashionable Palace Hotel in San Francisco. The others were Joe Berger and Charles Guidice. Guidice said he lives at 518 Enochian street, and Berger at 518 Doyle street.

The house on North Utah street is in the vicinity where a number of "moonshiner" gangs have their headquarters, according to the arresting agents. Two months ago two stills and several hundred gallons of mash were seized near-by, and two men were arrested.

Headed by Ray S. Adams, Chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the "Produce-street gang" captured yesterday surrounded the house while Adams and Harry Dandell entered. They surprised Guidice, who is a plumber, acting in his best professional manner in the installation of the two large stills.

Hearing a noise in the next room, they discovered that the four other men had started down a fire escape and were captured when the agents outside the house trained their guns on the alleged moonshiners. It was reported.

HEARING DATE SET
According to the Federal agents, Berger and Brown are the chief leaders of the part of the "Produce-street gang" captured yesterday. La Rosa and Stella are the "hunkies" and Guidice is the official plumber.

Unable to raise $2500 bond each, the five men were lodged in the County Jail and their hearing was set for the 24th inst., before United States Commissioner Turney.

The shades of the house in which the arrests were made were drawn, and a fictitious address was given on the vacant sign hung in front to conceal the operations going on inside.

FAMILY DISINHERITED
BY ANGELENO'S WILL

Declaring his wife had separated from him without reason thirty-five years before, and that he had not seen his son and daughter for twenty years, James J. Hughes specified all three in his will, filed for probate yesterday. Hughes died the 14th inst., leaving an estate of $9500.

The will makes Catherine Kogan, an adopted daughter, sole heir and executrix. The disinherited wife and children are named as Mrs. Lucretia Sylvia Hughes, Lottie Hughes and Donald Hughes.

MORE ANGELENOS TO MAKE ALASKAN TOUR

Under the direction of the D. F. Robertson Travel Bureau the following Angelenos will leave Los Angeles August 7 on a three-weeks' tour through Alaska: Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Zombro, Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Blah, Mr. and Mrs. D. Rogers, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Moss, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ferguson, Miss Alina Dodds, Miss Mary All and Miss Dorothy Elder. The party will proceed by rail and automobile to Vancouver, thence up the famous inside passage to Skagway, and return on the Canadian line steamers.

AQUEDUCT REPAIRS BEGUN*Mulholland Reports 1000 Yards Filled by Storm
Should be Ready for Water by End of Week

Chief Engineer Mulholland of the city water department yesterday reported by telephone from the Owens River Valley to the Water and Power Commission office here that work was started yesterday morning on repairing the damage done to the Aqueduct by Monday's storm and will be continued night and day until water is once more running through the pipe lines to Los Angeles.

The chief engineer reported that 1000 yards of open aqueduct were filled in with sand, rocks and other debris two miles south of Hallowell, near Rose Springs.

In order to rush work at top speed, 100 more construction men left Los Angeles last night for the scene of the damage, and took with them an additional steam shovel, making a total of 350 men on the job, with five steam shovels. Electric lights have been strung at the place where the sand, rocks and debris slid into and filled the Aqueduct. The crews are working on four-hour shifts, the chief engineer reported.

Unless more damage has been done than can now be ascertained, the chief engineer said that the fresh water would be turned into the Aqueduct at Hallowell by the last part of this week. In the meantime the city is waiting for water from Palmdam and other reservoirs south of Hallowell.

FARM STUDY
IMPRESSES
OLDENBURG*German Agriculture Head
Here for Investigation of American Methods

So many excellent features are presented by American agricultural system, it is impossible to state which makes the deepest impression on a foreign observer, says Dr. Gustav Oldenburg of Berlin, head of the Prussian Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry, who is now a Los Angeles visitor and a guest at the Biltmore.

"Perhaps one of the most remarkable developments in agriculture I have seen in this country is what you have been able to do with irrigation," said Dr. Oldenburg. "I came here from Arizona, where I spent several days in the inspection of irrigation projects and the lands that had been reclaimed thereby, and I must say that I was amazed to see how vast and desolate tracts of desert have been made productive through irrigation."

The German has spent six months in the United States studying agricultural methods. He has visited farms and experiment stations along the Atlantic seaboard and the Pacific Northwest, and then across the northern part of the country.

"I have been especially interested in the results of the Smith-Hughes act providing Federal funds for education in agriculture," said Dr. Oldenburg. "We have a similar system in Germany, though ours is not conducted on so large a scale."

Dr. Oldenburg said Germany had made great advances in the manufacture of fertilizer from the nitrogen of the air. He said crops the last two or three years had been abundant, with a large demand for agricultural products and high prices, but "our taxes are so high that despite good prices and large crops, the farmers are having rather hard time to make both ends meet," he commented.

"Agricultural production in Germany at this time is greater than it was before the war, however. The war stimulated farming in every part of the country. It also revealed many weaknesses in our previous agricultural system, which the people have now set about to remedy."

SEEKS MISSING WIFE
ONTARIO, July 21.—Ontario police were today asked to aid in a search for Mrs. Francis Fielder of Elsinore, who ten days ago left Long Beach, where she had been visiting at the home of Mrs. Maude Fielder, 635 East Ninth street, in come to Ontario and has not been heard from since.

In reporting the woman's disappearance to the officers, Mr. Fielder declared that his wife was in the habit of "bumming" automobiles in the vicinity of the city. He described as being 35 years of age, weighing about 115 pounds and with dark bobbed hair.

RESERVE PLAY SEATS
Collegian and Church Parties Will Witness Pilgrimage Drama

One of the large parties at the Pilgrimage Play tonight will be that from the University of California. Southern Branch, reservations having been made for more than 100 students and instructors. The University of Southern California will attend the play tomorrow night, having reserved a large block of seats for their use. The Wilshire Presbyterian Church and the Eagle Rock Presbyterian Church, will attend Thursday night.

Seats are now on sale at Barker Brothers, 716 South Broadway. Cars run direct to the theater grounds from the Hill-street station, and free parking space is provided for motorists.

SHIP COTTON NORTH*New Freight Rates Greatly Favor
San Francisco

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
FRESNO, July 21.—Los Angeles will lose about $5,000,000 worth of San Joaquin Valley cotton heretofore shipped to the south due to publication effective on September 1 of commodity rates for compressed cotton from Fresno to San Francisco. It was learned today. Previously cotton growers in the valley have shipped their cotton to Los Angeles by motor trucks. The new rates will give San Francisco an advantage of 20 cents per 100 pounds. After the installation of a compressor at Bakersfield, growers at the southern end of the San Joaquin Valley are expected to continue shipping to Los Angeles, but the majority of the shipping will be to the north.

ILLINOISANS TO GATHER
The Illinois State Society will meet Friday at 8 p.m. at Music Art Hall, 213 South Broadway. There will be music and dancing.

MOVES TO EVADE
TRAFFIC TAGS*Officers Report Modern Version of Old Rent Day Absence

It used to be customary to move in order to avoid paying rent, but a more modern system was evolved by Erle E. Lawrence, a carpenter, formerly employed on the Lasky lot, according to police.

He moves to avoid answering traffic tags.

Lawrence got four of them and appeared in court on one, and whenever officers went to hunt him they found he had moved. Yesterday at 1 a.m., however, Officers Anthony and Grainer located him at 217 Carlin avenue, Lynwood.

He pleaded guilty yesterday before Police Judge Chambers to four traffic violations and will be sentenced today.

SUSPECTS IN THEFT CASE
FACE COURT*Asserted Safe Crackers on Trial Under Charge of Robbing Stores

On new complaints charging them with plain burglary instead of burglary with explosives, Jack Black and Homer France, asserted safe crackers, were arraigned yesterday before Justice Blake and their hearing was set for Monday.

Black and France were convicted before Judge Collier last fall on a charge of driving an automobile thirty miles an hour in a twenty-mile zone.

Law was arrested here the 14th inst., on a charge of driving an automobile thirty miles an hour in a twenty-mile zone.

The case was called yesterday by Judge Judge Chambers and in answer to the name of Lew Gling, a Chinese across silently in the courtroom.

"Are you Lew Gling?" asked the court in the usual manner.

"No," the Chinese said, "Lew goes to China. He comes here fine."

When Judge Chambers had been revived with smiling said he recognized sufficiently distinct the charge and congratulated Lew Gling on his unprecedented honesty.

Executors Sues
for Settlement in Stock Deal

As executor of the estate of the late Henrietta Goodyear, Fred L. Walter yesterday filed suit in Federal District Court against Lamont and Josephine Rowlands, residents of Picayune, Miss., for judgment of $175,000 on 1752 shares in the Goodyear Redwood Company, a Maine corporation, assigned by Henrietta Goodyear to the Rowlands on March 23, 1922 with the understanding that the stock would be taken up and all interest paid upon demand of the assignor.

At the time the stock was assigned, Rowlands was president of the Goodyear Redwood Company, a corporation with 10,000 shares of preferred stock, par value of $100, and paying per share $10.

Walter's suit charges that the defendants have repeatedly refused to pay for the stock and their only contribution on the interest due is $2000. Judgment and cost of the suit are asked.

Mrs. Goodyear, a resident of Pasadena, died in Tampa, Fla., in April, last year.

SHIP COTTON NORTH*New Freight Rates Greatly Favor
San Francisco

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
FRESNO, July 21.—Los Angeles will lose about $5,000,000 worth of San Joaquin Valley cotton heretofore shipped to the south due to publication effective on September 1 of commodity rates for compressed cotton from Fresno to San Francisco. It was learned today. Previously cotton growers in the valley have shipped their cotton to Los Angeles by motor trucks. The new rates will give San Francisco an advantage of 20 cents per 100 pounds. After the installation of a compressor at Bakersfield, growers at the southern end of the San Joaquin Valley are expected to continue shipping to Los Angeles, but the majority of the shipping will be to the north.

KIN FEARS
ANGELENO
MURDERED*Nephew Says Uncle Had Considerable Money With Him on Disappearance

Fears for the safety of James M. Smith, a salesman of 5454 Britton avenue, were expressed last night when Frederick Biscaillet received a report from Yuma that Smith's car, abandoned, had been found in the riverbed near that city.

Smith left here for Yuma last Tuesday and has not been seen or heard from since, as far as can be learned. Smith lived with his nephew, E. H. Shoshmeh, who told officers he had heard nothing from his uncle since he left. The salesman, the nephew said, had a considerable amount of money with him and was to have collected $175 more in Yuma.

The Yuma dispatch said the point where the car was found is a hangout for tramps and it was feared Smith had been robbed and murdered. Deputy Sheriff Bishop in charge of the automobile search last night for the missing man.

DIODEGENES IN CHINA
Wants to Welcome Low Gling
Who Let Money for His Fine

If the Chinese have a counterpart of Diogenes, the searcher for an honest man, he should be waiting at the dock in Shanghai when Lew Gling, 717 North Alameda street, arrives there.

Law was arrested here the 14th inst., on a charge of driving an automobile thirty miles an hour in a twenty-mile zone.

The case was called yesterday by Judge Judge Chambers and in answer to the name of Lew Gling, a Chinese across silently in the courtroom.

"Are you Lew Gling?" asked the court in the usual manner.

"No," the Chinese said, "Lew goes to China. He comes here fine."

cons. said the board at this time at least contemplates no action.

SUPPORT FOR DYER
Ben H. Bell, chairman of the board of trustees, was out of the city yesterday, but Dana Cox, a trustee and president of the Brotherhood of the church, said:

"The trustees contemplate no action. The situation might come up at the regular meeting of the congregation on the 25th inst. Of the thirty officers of the congregation, twenty-six are solidly for Dr. Dyer, and he has the almost unanimous support of the congregation."

Dr. Dyer, Mr. Laughlin and Mr. Cox said the Monday night meeting was unconstitutional and illegal from the viewpoint of the church's law.

PULMER TELLS STAND
Boyd H. Fuller, formerly superintendent of the Sunday-school, who read last Sunday the call to the congregation to meet Monday night, said the call was both constitutional and legal and that while he does not now know what would be done to further the purposes of the meeting, which would oust Dr. Dyer, he was of the opinion that the matter might be left before the Southern California Congregational Church conference for settlement.

Mr. Fuller said Christian H. Harke and J. C. F. Atsatt, church officers, were among the leaders of the movement, but "that is a mistake." Mr. Atsatt said, and "no, I'm not taking part beyond expressing my views." Mr. Harke said, and they declined comment on the next move.

J. A. Garrett, church treasurer, who presided over the meeting Monday night, said it has not yet been determined how the leaders shall proceed to enforce its vote, but that due announcement will be made when it is determined.

The meeting Monday night was attended by 100 or 125 persons and sixty-nine voted on the question of requesting Dr. Dyer to resign. 87 for resignation and 3 against it. The church has 141 members, its secretary said, with about 400 active.

"While the number acting Monday night might seem small," Fuller said, "yet many of the 500 church membership are associate members and a comparative few are actively engaged in church management and official business. We believe our activity will be upheld by those who constitute the active workers."

Footprints of Girl May Guide Fate in Court

Whether a girl with feet four and a half inches long can make footprints fifteen inches long is a question on which Justice Wood will have to decide today. Elizabeth Crawford of 2004 E. 4th street, who before him accused of burglary at 2004 E. 4th street in the apartment of Catherine Martin. The principal evidence for the prosecution was a trail of footprints from one bathroom window to another across an unused court.
"What was the size of these prints?" queried Defense Attorney Hahn.
"About fifteen inches long," replied Officer R. E. Stone.
Hahn placed his client's foot upon the table and asked her immediate discharge. But Dep. Atty. Hahn objected.
"Maybe she wore overshoes," he said.
The court reserved decision. Miss Martin lost $200 in money and jewelry in the burglary. It was testified.

Arrowhead "Dry"

From an Old English Recipe

The Wine-Like Ginger Ale, made from Water that Seeps Through Mountain Granite 2000 Feet above the Sea

Pure ginger root from Jamaica, flavors and spices from India, Egypt and other parts of the world—22 in all.

Proportioned and blended according to an old English recipe with a famous mountain spring water so pure and clear that the characteristic qualities of these delicious ingredients are retained intact. The result is a delicacy of zest and flavor that distinguished some rare old wines.

You can't know till you taste it just how good it is. Ask your dealer for it.

SUSPECT IN BOMB CASE DETAINED

Will be Investigated as Sender of Death Machine That Maimed Torchia

A comparatively minor charge of violating the immigration laws will be used by Federal authorities to hold Angelo Zaupa, alias Angelo Lorenza, now under arrest at El Centro, until postal inspectors conclude investigations of the prisoner's suspected role as the mailer of a bomb that last Christmas Day maimed Ernest M. Torchia, Italian attorney, slightly injured, 14-year-old Emily Torchia, and wrecked the Torchia home at 1223 North Campbell street, Casa Verdugo, near Glendale.

Zaupa, for whom members of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's office and postal inspectors have been searching since the explosion, is accused of jumping a $5000 bond last February. A bench warrant was issued by Judge James for his arrest on Sunday by Sheriff R. C. Gillette and Deputy Sheriff William Oswald near the line at Calexico.

Immediately following his arrest on the charge of bringing three Italian anarchists last year, Zaupa retained Torchia as counsel. Difficulties between the two are said to have arisen when Zaupa turned over his ranch near Arcadia to Torchia on a long-term lease.

Federal Judge James raised Zaupa's bond from $5000 to $10000 after he had pleaded guilty upon the advice of Torchia, and a few days later the suspect disappeared.

NEWS OF THE CAFES

Maryn McGuire, who was selected by the Western Motion Picture Advertisers (the Wampas) as one of the baby stars in a contest recently staged by a big Chicago daily for the most beautiful young woman in motion pictures, will be the guest of honor and award the dance prizes at Ed-Ed's Brander's Hollywood Montmartre Cafe, which is in the celebration of Bohemian night. One of the special features of the evening's festivities will be the finale in the dancing contest staged under the auspices of the Parkside Country Club in which the winning couple in addition to receiving a prize of a series of golf lessons by John Duncan, "Duke" of the golf world, expert, will also be awarded a life membership in the club.

The six couples who have won prizes and qualified to enter the grand finale, include Clara Bow and John Harron, Shamus Day and Rex Lewis, Woodrow Newell, western representative for the Actors' Equity Association, will present another of his weekly impromptu vaudeville numbers in which several popular stage and screen stars will participate. Among the film stars who have made reservations for tonight are Fred Chaplin, "Got No Time," Virginia Fox, Dorothy Devore, Alice Calhoun, Vol. Vale, Agnes Ayres, Jack Warner, Helen Pauline, Pauline, Louise Fazenda and many others.

Vernon Country Club Popular Warm summer evenings do not seem to affect the crowds of diners and dancers who nightly flock to enjoy the hospitality of the Vernon Country Club, now entering its thirteenth year as one of Southern California's popular cafes. Many of the old boys who started with Vernon parties and are still on the job. Jerry O'Connell is still at the door. George Lloyd and Mel Calhoun, songsters and fun-makers, still pull their original numbers over as only they can. Chris Schonberg and his orchestra still furnish synchronized dance music.

George Lloyd is featuring two new comedy songs, "Got No Time" and "Sweet Georgia Brown." Mel Calhoun has a new ballad, "You Told Me to Go," written by a local boy, Henry Cohen of "The Tent." A new harmony number, "Crown a Little Lullaby," written by Chris Schonberg, leader of the orchestra, is a very effective song by both George and Mel.

Patrons of Vernon remark about the unusual coolness of the cafe, due to a new ventilating system recently installed.

Screen Star as Dance Judge Tonight at the Green Village Cafe in U. S. Christie Clark, Hollywood, Miss. Trilby Clark, motion picture star who is under contract with Hunt Stromberg, the producer, will appear as the guest of honor and judge the usual Wednesday evening dancing contest. Miss Clark, a former New York Police beauty, is a native of Australia. She, who has been in the show business for several years, has been opposite Harry R. Holtzman, the "Bad Land" and "The Prairie Pirate."

Through the history of the Sport and Travel Show of Hollywood, a huge model of "Swim Easy" brand bathing suit is to be awarded both the lady and gentleman winner of the dancing contest. Rod Lorin's syncopating orchestra, and five acts by professional complete entertainment menu.

Several reservations have been telephoned in from the Hollywood studios, where Miss Clark is a great favorite, according to Anita Agreel, owner-manager of the Green Village Cafe.

TRANSIT PROGRAM URGED

Experts Point Out Need of Development at Dinner Given for Discussion of Plans

Development of rapid transit is now the city's most urgent need in the handling of its traffic problems. Millard McClintock, traffic expert, told the group of State and city officials gathered at a luncheon given at the Biltmore yesterday by the Los Angeles Traffic Commission.

The luncheon, which was presided over by W. H. Pierce, chairman of the Traffic Commission, had been arranged in honor of Gov. Richardson. Mayor Cryer and members of the City Council, the purpose being to acquaint these officials with the work of the commission and its plans.

PURPOSE EXPLAINED
A brief outline of the aims of the commission was given by David R. Faries, chairman of the Major Highways Committee of the commission, who stated that during its three years' existence the commission has assisted in solving many of the city's traffic problems and is now entering upon an enlarged program.

"The purpose of the Traffic Commission is to serve as a sort of clearinghouse for the efforts of the different agencies seeking to meet traffic problems," said Mr. Faries. "Specifically, it is its province to work with the city authorities in the solution of these problems."

In its work the commission has followed four different lines, Mr. Faries said, which included the regulation of existing traffic, improvement in street maintenance, the increase of street areas and the improvement of public transportation facilities.

servatively estimated at 1,300,000, cannot afford to delay.

EFFECT ON BUSINESS

Speaking of the disadvantages of the lack of rapid transit to a city the size of Los Angeles, the speaker referred particularly to the abnormal decentralization of merchandising with its unfavorable effect upon established business values. He added further that the absence of means of speedy transportation from the outlying districts to the business section would have the effect of robbing the city of its outstanding characteristics as a city of homes. "A well-planned system of subways and elevated roads will tend to centralize business and decentralize residences, stimulating business activity in the heart of the city and the growth of new residence districts in the suburbs," he said.

URGES RAPID TRANSIT

The principal speaker was Dr. McClintock, formerly connected with the bureau of municipal research at Harvard University, and now acting as expert adviser to the Traffic Commission.

"Rapid transportation is the only satisfactory solution of the problem of mass transportation in a city the size of Los Angeles," said Dr. McClintock. "One of its principal advantages is that it will relieve automobile congestion by removing trolley cars from the streets."

The speaker stressed especially the importance of such removal, stating that without it proper control of street traffic is impossible in a center as populous as Los Angeles. "The history of city traffic in this country shows that whenever a municipality has attained the 1,000,000 mark in population, steps have had to be taken to segregate the public transportation facilities from vehicular traffic and to adopt a rapid transit system," said Dr. McClintock.

"New York adopted such a system in 1898 with a population of 1,100,000; Brooklyn in 1898, with a population of 500,000, and the Chicago system was also instituted in 1890, when that city's population had reached 1,200,000. Los Angeles, with a population con-

COUNCIL ADVANCES

PLAYGROUND FUND

Subject to the approval of Mayor Cryer, the City Council yesterday accepted the recommendation of its Finance Committee that $25,000 be appropriated and an additional $25,000 be lent the Playground Commission toward the purchase for $100,000 of fourteen acres of land near Sixty-first street and Western avenue for a playground and recreation field. Councilman Moore spoke of the appropriation and loan. The commission will pay the remainder from its own funds.

SCOTT SALARY INCREASE HIT

Cryer Hauls Fire Board Over Coals

Outlook for Pay Boosts Held Slim

Ash Opens Investigation of Question

The outlook for pay rises and salary increases under the present administration seemed slim yesterday following the verbal "uplifting" Mayor Cryer gave the members of the Board of Fire Commissioners for recommending a $5000 a year increase for Fire Chief Scott without consulting him.

The Mayor followed up his verbal remarks to the commissioners with a strong letter in which he disapproved of the increase and said: "I consider the time most inopportune to enter upon a program of raising salaries."

As a result of the Mayor's stand the Health Commission consulted with him yesterday as to a probable salary for Health Commissioner Parish as general manager of the department, and other commissions are also consulting with him as to general managers' salaries instead of doing as the Fire Commission did.

PAY PROPOSAL BLOCKED. The Mayor has on his desk a proposition which was blocked in the City Council by Councilman Hall and the Council majority.

At an expense annually of $119,122. This total added expenditure of $114,582 was recommended by the Budget Committee of the former Council. An attempt to railroad it through the present Council was halted by Councilman Hall.

In his letter against increasing Scott's salary, the Mayor said, "I do not wish to be understood as in any sense disparaging or undervaluing the worth of Chief Scott," and he declared the new charter calls for a more expansive government, "at least from the standpoint of the city government."

He pointed out that the new arrangement makes specific allotments of tax money to various departments, but that it leaves a large amount available for the general purposes of conducting the city government. "Our margin of safety," he said, "our reserve with which to meet future contingencies is none too great."

SALARIES COMPARED. The salary of a fire chief, the Mayor said, "should not be compared with that of an elective officer, whose employment is of a temporary nature and who is subjected to the expense of conducting a political campaign and to all of the exactions which must be met by one whose continuance in office is dependent on public favor."

Chairman Ash of the Council's Finance Committee, started an investigation to determine compensation paid outside of the city service who do work like that done by the engineering department's employees. He said labor turnover in the department ought to be reduced and that one way to do it would be to pay employees adequately so they would stick on the job.

Seldom Gets to See Wife, Asks Decree

Just. Elmer Paul Abernethy, U.S.N., is married, but might as well be a bachelor, for all he gets to see of his wife, he declared yesterday in a divorce suit filed against Mabel Harbough Abernethy.

Abernethy, he says, lives in Washington no matter where he is stationed, unless he happens to go to Washington, when she moves temporarily.

He arranged to go to Baltimore last fall for the Army-Navy football game and asked her to meet him in Baltimore. She wrote she would see the game with him, but would leave immediately afterward, so that Abernethy didn't get to see her.

Then he arranged ten days' leave at Christmas, but his wife wrote again that it wouldn't be much use, as she had planned to leave Washington the day after. He wrote and saw her for fifteen minutes of the ten days.

Earlier in their married life, Abernethy declared, his wife made fun of his small salary and ridiculed him before their friends with such phrases as "Look what I married!"

MEADOWS LINKED TO GANG

Testimony, Intended to Show "Attorney" Was Head of Dope Ring, Produced at Trial

Testimony purporting to show that although Rush Meadows, "attorney" and former football star, was the brains of a dope and bond-theft gang, but that he is an accomplished handle man, was produced at the trial of Meadows, Fred Keller and Charles Sweeney are on trial on charges of conspiracy in forging and dealing in Liberty Bonds.

Meadows, according to testimony worth of French cocaine. All three men declared Meadows was the owner of the dope and bonds, and that he was the brains of the gang.

Dr. Franklin Kerr, a former client of Meadows now awaiting trial on charges of sending poison through the mails to his former wife, testified that he took a package of bonds from the latter's office to his apartment, not knowing the bonds were stolen.

A motion by defense attorneys to dismiss the indictments on the ground they were not returned legally was taken under submission by Judge Shappard.

PAID FOR LIQUOR. Dave Learner, codefendant with Meadows, Sweeney and Keller, but who was granted a separate trial, testified that the $300 in bonds found in his home had been given to him by Meadows as security for payment of city taxes of liquor at $50 a case.

With the testimony this morning of Detective Egan, the government will close its case against Meadows.

COMMISSION COMMITTEES DESIGNATED

Police Board Organizes Schedule for Purpose of Expediting Its Business

The Board of Police Commissioners yesterday adopted a committee organization schedule for the more efficient transaction of its business. By this method officers will be referred to committees which will make investigations and reports to the entire commission. The schedule is as follows:

Investigation of complaints against members of the police department: Commissioners Webster and Thorpe.

Investigation of complaints against holders of permits: Commissioners Hirschman and Webster.

Rules and regulations for the police department: Commissioners Thorpe and Hirschman.

Minutes of the police commission meetings: Commissioners Inley and Foss.

Legal: Commissioners Foss and Inley.

Trade: Commissioners Webster and Thorpe.

Under the plan of the Board of Public Works for the rearrangement of city office space made necessary by the enlarged city government and the raising of the Hallard Block for the new City Hall, the police commission offices are to be moved from the City Hall to the fourth floor of the International Bank Building at Temple and Spring streets, which has been purchased by the city under condemnation as part of the site of the new City Hall.

Russians' Plans for Stock Sale Here Explained

What plans a group of Russians have in making the State Corporation Department for permission to promote a $25,000 stock issue in the Russian National Home Corporation were investigated yesterday by the department at a hearing.

Officers of the concern were asked if they intended to carry on anything that would be contrary to the laws of the United States. They denied any such plan. The corporation, they said, proposes to erect a building somewhere in the Russian colony on the East Side, where meetings of Russian societies, entertainments and public gatherings may be conducted. The stock issue they propose to dispose of to Russians in Los Angeles.

Four of the organizers said they are American citizens and the remaining three declared they have taken out their first papers. Peter Mordus is president of the corporation, Eli R. Pasuk, secretary, and E. L. Goidard, vice-president. The investigation by the department was conducted by Deputy Commissioner Fraul and Marquette.

POLICE HUNT SAVAGE DOG

Hollywood police are searching for the owner of a large police dog which yesterday attacked and bit H. J. Warburton, an employee of a spring water concern, as he was delivering water on Wilcox avenue. Warburton was taken to the hospital of Wilcox and Cane on Hollywood Boulevard by Officer Deaton. He suffered a badly torn right leg, the officer declared. The dog which attacked Warburton, he was later learned by police, recently bit a woman pedestrian.

FILM CONRAD STORY
Rowland V. Lee has set himself to the difficult but enviable task of faithfully transferring Joseph Conrad's favorite story, "Nostalgia," to the screen for William Fox. Under the title "The Silver Treasure," the director has started the production of this famous South American romance with one of the finest casts ever assembled for a picture.

BEBE DANIELS
Bebe Daniels is coming home today, accompanied by her mother, Lois Austin, and her grandmother, Mrs. George B. Griffith. She will make at least two pictures here, normally more, before returning east.

BIG CHRISTIE PROGRAM
FOR COMING SEASON
"Bigger and better laughs" seem to be the slogan of Al Christie. And, being a horse-handman, Christie isn't going to let the glad Greater Movie Season come along and find him unprepared. The first of his twenty-eight two-reel comedies now being produced in Hollywood will be ready for that joyous season, which, you may remember, occurs in August.

THE CHRISTIE PROGRAM
The Christie Comedy stock company has also been enlarged by the addition of Yola D'Avril, Parisian dancer who appeared in "The Girl from Paris" and "The Girl from Paris."

THE MOUNTAIN MAN
Lillian Rich has been cast in the comedy "The Mountain Man," which is being produced by William Fox. The picture is being produced by William Fox.

George Billings
George Billings, who did his bit toward making Abraham Lincoln famous by playing the role in the big Rocket production, has been cast for a role in "The Viennese Madley," which June Mathis is producing for First National.

Agnes Johnston
When in doubt, send for the wife. Anyhow, that seems to be the motto of Frank Daney, playwright, who, you may remember, is the husband of Agnes Johnston.

Norma Talmadge's New One
Speaking of the talented Talmadge family, Norma Talmadge's next vehicle will be "Paris After Dark," and Sidney Franklin will direct. Ronald Colman will play opposite Miss Talmadge.

Montana Love to Drew
Montana Love, who is on his first trip to Hollywood, has received a cablegram from a London paper for which he served five years as a staff and sketch artist to draw a series of sketches of Hollywood and also write his impressions of the cinema capital for publication.

Raymond McKee Signs
Having finished "Smith's Landlord," a new Bennett comedy directed by Edna Glavin, Raymond McKee has been loaned by Mack Bennett to Warner Brothers for a picture to be made with Irene Rich in "Compromise."

McKee is under contract with Bennett and has been appearing in "The Girl from Paris" and "The Girl from Paris." McKee is under contract with Bennett and has been appearing in "The Girl from Paris" and "The Girl from Paris."

PLAN "PRETTY LADIES"
CONTEST FOR LOEW'S
Loew's State Theatre announces that tonight a "pretty ladies" contest will be held at the theater. There will be nine different divisions in this contest, and prizes will be awarded by Los Angeles merchants to the winner in each division. The audience will be the judges, and the girls receiving the most applause will be considered the winners.

Monta Bell
Monta Bell, director of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer photoplay "Pretty Ladies," now running at Loew's State, will be master of ceremonies.

One girl will be picked out of nine divisions, for some distinguishing mark of beauty. One girl will be awarded a prize for her hair, another for her eyes, a third for her teeth, another for her face, a fifth for the charming curves of her new negligee, while awards also will be given to the girls who have the most shapely hands and arms, figure, limbs and feet.

RAILIN "RESTING"
Hugo Ballin, who has been resting after directing Mabel Ballin and Percy Marmont in "The Rhinoceros," has returned to his work on his fourth novel, which is to be a story with Rome for its setting. His first opus, called "The Rhinoceros," has been through the hands of a little interest in the city of Rome, which bears the plumed title of "Night Lights," will soon follow.

MUSICAL
REINER RETURNS
BRADMAN IS PRESENTED WITH TELLING EFFECT
By Edwin Schallert
A new impetus toward the unusual pervaded the concert at the Hollywood Bowl last evening. Fritz Reiner resumed his place as the conductor of the programs in the outdoor amphitheater, and both the brilliance and the quality of his directorship were evinced once again in a variety of numbers, ranging from the classic nobility of the Brahms Symphony No. 2 in D major, to the futuristic "Pacific 351," by Honegger.

The selections were by far the most radical in their nature the listener that have been presented this season, but they were in no wise lacking in either interest or appeal.

"Pacific 351" is a daring piece of musical writing. It cannot be called musical, either in the conventional sense of that word because there is plenty of dissonance even in the most carefully composed view of the dash of a locomotive through the night at a speed of eighty miles an hour.

The composition, which was given by the Philharmonic Orchestra last season, is better than strenuous in the open air than it is in the closed auditorium. I do not know that it is quite as good as the other, but nevertheless there is no understating its power as a viridly descriptive novelty on the concert stage.

Musically, the most distinctive interpretation was the Brahms Symphony. Reiner played this with a fine reverence, reading the score with a keen eye for every detail of its beauty.

Particularly excellent were the
Adagio non troppo and the Allegretto Grazioso.

In the rendering of the classic works Mr. Reiner has shown a most splendid style, and it is indeed a pleasure to record that he is to include several fine programs of the more conservative order during the remainder of his stay here. I do not mean by this that his modern renditions are deficient in interest, but I do feel that he has disclosed his most artistic leadership in the works of the older schools.

He seems to evidence a much deeper sympathy for their content, and to disclose in them the major excellences of his clear-cut perception of melody as melody, and of the remarkable rhythmic shading as well.

The smooth declension and the diversity of moods that he evoked from the Adagio non troppo of the "Fireworks" fantasy, it is interesting work of serious lighter character than either of the "Touche" or the "Pavane" here before. I found the rendition deficient in spectacular quality, but the work was none the less quite effectively done.

The "Lovers" Overture No. 3
by Beethoven, and the "Dance of the Apprentices" from "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," by Wagner, enhanced the popular side of the program.

An all-Tchaikovsky concert will be given Thursday night.

WRITERS' CLUB HAS ENTERTAINING BILL
Eastern Tale Vies With Schmitz for Comedy for First Honors

For the seeker after entertain- ment and really clever acting, the plays as presented at the Writers' Club last Friday and Saturday evenings were a most satisfying and satisfying even the most critical Every human emotion that may be evoked by the stage is in evidence and the result proved highly satisfactory to a large and appreciative audience.

Frank O'Connor's "With Fond Affection" started the evening's bill, with Beverly Bayne playing the role of a modernist, future star returned to the stage for a season. Miss Bayne's performance was a most satisfactory one, and she obviously was pleasing. Capably supporting her were William Hays, Gertrude Barnes, Gertrude Qualey and Frank O'Connor, who acted in a triple capacity that of author, director and actor.

"The Snake" and Doris Lloyd were one of the sensations of the evening. The play had a tragedy ending, wherein Miss Lloyd died of a snake-bite, with the death of one of the other characters, as well. This particular bit of action thoroughly evinced the actress's ability in a role requiring a fine sense of drama and a complete understanding and comprehension of her part and very realistically portrayed the vengeance of a Brahmin doctor as wreaked upon his unfaithful wife and her lover. Mitchell Lewis and Roland Bottomley played the parts of husband and lover, respectively, both of whom gave exceedingly deft characterizations. Bottomley wrote the play and produced it.

Eleanor Boardman showed that she could be quite as clever and entertaining on the stage as upon the screen. In "The Wedding Ring" a comedy written by Arthur Schnitzler and directed by Benjamin Glaser, Miss Boardman had admirable support in Kenneth Gibson and Otto Matsson and the three combined to render as amusing a situation and as excellent a performance as could be desired. The skit was manifestly one that could be enjoyed with utter abandon and one that carried appreciation with it on the part of the audience. Miss Boardman's characterization of the little Tennessee chorus girl, too, whose former lover had returned to her, was one of those with vivaciousness and charm.

The Old South during the Civil War was the theme of "The Road to Yesterday," an old stage play adapted for the screen by Jeanie Macpherson and Beulah Marie Dix.

This smash-up is planned to be one of the big spectacles of the picture, and is being arranged with exceptional care. Frank Uron, assistant director of "The Road to Yesterday," will aid De Mille in handling the scene. The cast for this production, De Mille's first personally directed picture since his alliance with the independents, includes Joseph Schildkraut, Jettie Roubal, Vera Reynolds, William Boyd and Julia Faye in featured roles.

Instead of being herself, Mariel Frances Dana, former film starlet, is being Pauline Garon at the Buena Vista in Pasadena this week, where she is being filmed in "Compromise," the picture which started work on the neighborhood of $25,000.

MOTON TRIP
The lure of the open road has called Victor H. Clark, assistant to Joseph L. Mankiewicz, first vice-president in charge of production, of Famous Players-Lasker Corporation, who left yesterday for a three weeks' automobile trip through the Pacific Northwest. He will drive north as far as Seattle, making side trips to Crater Lake, Or., and Mount St. Helens, Wash., and will return by boat.

MAY AT BEACH
May McAvoy has heeded the call of the beach and for the next two weeks will commune daily with the sea shore. This star during the past month completed the most difficult assignment she has ever had in her career in "My Old Dutch," and the following day started work as the featured player in "Tessie," which Dallas Fitzgibbon directed for Arrow producers.

LILYAN HAS REAL ROLE
Lilyan Tashman has started work in "A Little Bit of Broadway," in which she shares honors, under Robert E. Leonard's direction for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Pauline Starke. For the fourth time within the past few months Miss Tashman enacts for the screen the role that she actually lived for several years in New York, that of a stage actress.

DIANA MOTORS
A number of short motor trips to Southern California cities and resorts are being enjoyed by Diana Miller during the few days' respite before she starts work on her next picture. Miss Miller, who is under contract to Fox, has just finished a dancing role in the "Helen and Warren" married life series.

BATTLEY DENIES
Hansom Battley, dashing leading man, rises to refute the rumor that he has signed a long-term contract with a widely known producing company. The actor states that he is still a free-lance player, and is not considering giving up his independence.

Fire Chief Favors Basement
Sprinklers

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
PARADISE, July 21.—Investigation into the cause of the terrible fire which last night totally destroyed the Paradise Hotel Company, 311 South Fair Oaks avenue, and brought about property damage of approximately $200,000, failed to disclose how the fire was actually started. All that is known is that the blaze was first sighted in the basement and soon enveloped the entire three-story building.

As a result of last night's catastrophe eighty-five heads of families were thrown out of employment, as the Paradise Hotel Company was one of the city's largest manufacturing concerns. The loss more than doubles the city's total fire loss for all last year.

In a statement issued by Fire Chief Ernest F. Goup, he declared that the fire was the worst encountered here in the past twelve years, and was perhaps the hardest to fight of any in the history of the city. Due to the small water mains on South Fair Oaks avenue, the fire department was greatly handicapped, he said. Chief Goup advised that it is compulsory to install automatic sprinklers in all basements. This would have averted last night's fire, he said.

The two firemen, J. R. Adler and Guy Chase, who were overcome with smoke and half-drowned in the basement of the burning building, were reported to be greatly improved today.

LONG BEACH, July 21.—This city will, within the next thirty days, offer approximately two additional miles of bathing beach to the thousands of tourists and visitors who come here. Work of improving the lagoons in Recreation Park, this city's new 240-acre playground, will be completed by that time. It was said today by Frank Downs, superintendent of parks.

Several miles of fine beach, available for surf bathing, will be augmented by the two miles of still-water bathing facilities in the park.

Officials Think Map Died From Effects of Heat

RIVERSIDE, July 21.—Although circumstances surrounding the death of Miss Petie, Sacramento man, whose mangled body was found early Saturday morning on the Southern Pacific tracks near Helton, have not been cleared up, Sheriff Clem Sweetser and Coroner C. S. Dickson today ventured the opinion that there were indications that the man had been overcome by the heat while walking on the tracks.

Two men have been arrested in connection with the death, one being held at the Sheriff's office here as the present time. The man, according to Sheriff Sweetser, claims that he had seen of Petie the Sacramento man was walking down the tracks carrying a can of gasoline to his car, stranded for lack of gas on the road near the railway.

Although a small pistol was found near the dead man, with an empty cartridge in the magazine, no bullet wound was found on the body at Saturday's inquest. Coroner Dickson said, Sheriff Sweetser said the bullet might have been fired from the shell of the pistol many days ago and that the gun may have been dropped from Petie's person as he staggered on the tracks.

Attorney Alvin Repass Deal for Disabled Veteran

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
SANTA MONICA, July 21.—Dr. A. C. Weaver, city physician, will examine Glenn R. Schuck, World War veteran, who was recently refused a license by Mayor J. C. Steele to peddle fish on the municipal pier, following a notice received from Attorney Forrest D. Macomber.

According to Macomber's statement, all that is being asked for Schuck is a fair show. Certificates presented by physicians contain information that the veteran is not fit to indulge in hard physical labor. He further stated that if any good reason should be advanced as to why Schuck should not be given a license he wished to know it, but that fair treatment would be demanded.

City Council Refuses to Permit Two Proposed
Halls to Open

ALHAMBRA, July 21.—Coming after one of the biggest and most argumentative meetings ever held by any board of commissioners here, the City Council last night, voted unanimously against granting permission for the operation of the Alhambra Auditorium and a proposed place at Main and Olive streets as public dance halls. The dance-hall question has been a cause of argument and strife since last summer, and the Council chambers of the City Hall were filled last night, which was slated to be the time for the final decision on the matter. More than a score of citizens took part in the discussion, the most vocal maintaining a mysterious silence until it came time to take a vote.

Undecided by the decision, Grant M. Lorraine, former City Manager and now a local real estate dealer, said today that he and a number of other citizens would probably be started against the action of the board. The plan of calling a special election to get the attitude of the entire city on the dance-hall question is also being considered.

In addition to Mr. Lorraine, the arguments for the dance halls were advanced strongly by Mrs. Frances Upham, Los Angeles woman, who recently purchased the Alhambra Auditorium and spent several thousand dollars refitting it for dancing.

The opposition was led by numerous ministers and church officials, among them Rev. Harry W. White of the First Methodist Church, Rev. White said that he did not oppose dancing, but that he was against "commercial dancing as a breeder of vice."

QUARANTINE MAYOR

French-Executive Under Ban as Hanford

HANFORD, July 21.—Hanford had the unique experience of having its Mayor under quarantine for twenty-four hours. L. V. Lucas, who is Mayor, is also a minister and pastor of the First Methodist Church.

In the discharge of his pastoral duties, ignorant of the nature of the disease, he called to administer spiritual consolation to Frederick W. Hayes, who died Sunday morning from infantile paratyphoid. Following the death, an order of the State Board of Health ordered the isolation of those who had been in contact including the reverend Mayor.

The latter who was scheduled as the preacher at the joint service of the churches at the Courthouse park Sunday secured a substitute and it was not until Monday afternoon that he was complying with fumigation and other requirements of the health authorities that the Mayor was released from quarantine and able to resume his municipal and ministerial duties.

USE CADET TEACHERS

KANFORD, July 21.—Kings county is to be one of the first in the State to avail itself of the system by which students of the teachers colleges who have had at least one year's work may be placed in rural grammar schools for the first year of their training under the supervision of the principal of the school. According to County Superintendent Miss M. L. Richmond, ten cadet teachers will be assigned to Kings county.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENT
VAN NUTS, July 21.—John W. Alton, former judge and Chautauque lecturer, on Sunday while at Venice was robbed of $100,000 by a pickpocket. And the queer part of it is that Judge Alton isn't any poorer today than he was before the sneak thief swiped the wallet out of the back pocket of his pants.

Judge Alton was watching the bathing beauty show, and trying to determine the deciding features of the girl that ought to be winner.

Of a sudden, the thief nabbed the wallet containing worthless oil stock, a $100,000 German mark certificate on the German Reichbank, national identification cards and insurance receipts.

"My only regret," Judge Alton said today, "is that I couldn't have been alongside and seen the crook's face when he opened the wallet."

SANTA ANA, July 21.—Charged with attempting to dispose of a fictitious note and mortgage, S. W. Milligan of this city was held in the Santa Ana Jail today following his preliminary examination upon a charge of obtaining property under false pretenses. On the first charge, Milligan was held in default of bond for $1000.

On the second charge, to which Milligan, through his attorney, Roy L. Lasby, pleaded not guilty, he was held in default of bond for $1000.

Officially, the charge is that Milligan, through his attorney, Roy L. Lasby, obtained a mortgage on a certain note and mortgage of $1000 which was not his own, and he was held in default of bond for $1000.

Troubles at Pasadena Made Worse by Recent Action of City Commission

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
PASADENA, July 21.—Action on the part of the Board of City Directors to end a heated controversy over the establishment of an undertaking home in the city stirred up new troubles instead, it was revealed at the City Hall today. By unanimous action the directors decided to extend the much discussed undertaking home in the direction of North Fair Oaks avenue. Action on this matter has been delayed for many weeks due to protests from citizens.

Instead of bringing about permanent peace by the announcement of today's action, the directors made an immediate target for further and a more vehement attack.

In a public statement issued today the directors of the North Fair Oaks Improvement Association accused William Easterbrook, a member of the board of the City Clerk, of "failing to allow their protest to be read by other members of the board."

LOCATE JAIL-BREAKER

Man Wanted in Glendale Under Arrest in San Francisco

GLENDAL, July 21.—Robert Allen, who was arrested yesterday in San Francisco, will be brought here today for arraignment on a charge of burglary and jail breaking.

Allen, who used the names of Walsh, Thomas and Frasier, was arrested last September while robbing the Wilson Bank Hardware Company's store on North Brand Boulevard, but before he could be brought to trial he fled.

The police had secured his finger prints and photographs, however, and the police of the entire country were notified to be on the lookout for Allen, who, it is declared, has a criminal record extending through many California and Southwestern cities.

SEEK DRUG USERS

Santa Monica Police Believe Addicts Responsible for Series of Recent Burglaries

SANTA MONICA, July 21.—Investigation made by local police into four robberies committed in this city during the past three days, has led them to believe that members of the gang are narcotic addicts and the prowling was done in order to obtain a new supply of the drug.

Three of the robberies were committed in the Santa Monica store. At the R. C. Henderson store, 2225 Santa Monica boulevard, the burglars escaped with $4 in currency. Different medicine cabinets had been thoroughly searched. The other two pharmacies, the Law Drug Store in Santa Monica Canyon, and the Henderson store at Montana avenue and Seventh street, were entered, but as far as could be learned the prowling was confined to drug cabinets. Nothing was reported stolen.

The latest robbery to be reported at headquarters was the entering of the Jones Clothing Store, Main street, Ocean Park, where early this morning more than $100 worth of clothing was removed. Entrance was gained after a rear door had been unlocked. The man in which the thieves operated has led police to believe they are members of a professional gang rather than amateurs. Every clue is being weighed in an effort to effect the apprehension of the prowlers.

Senator Shortridge Principal
Speaker at Opening of Annual County Fair

VENTURA, July 20.—United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge will be the principal speaker at the opening of the Ventura County Fair, on September 14. The program calls for the observance of a day at the opening of the fair to be called "Spanish Day," to be followed by the presentation of the growth of Ventura county from the days of the missions down to modern times.

There will be a parade headed by a band of Californian Indians, followed by the Franciscan fathers, by Don Gaspar de Portola and his band of explorers who passed through Ventura on the search for the Bay of Monterey which ended in the discovery of San Francisco Bay. After Don Gaspar will come the caballeros and escuderos of old Spanish times, the American settlers in their covered wagons, the bean farmers and oil-well drillers, and the oldest automobile to be found, followed by the very latest in sedans. No parade like this has ever been staged in Southern California. It will end with an airplane running on the ground and taking flight as the end of the line of march is reached.

The Spanish day program is being staged by Cabrillo Park. Native sons of the Golden West, and the local parlor will be assisted by leading persons of Los Angeles, San Diego and Southern California. The natives will put on Spanish dress for that day, and the whole town will take on an air of the olden times in San Buenaventura.

PAYS HEAVY FINE
Autoist Guilty of Driving Car
While Intoxicated

INGLEWOOD, July 21.—George T. Towner, 31, Segundo oil worker, was fined $300 in police court today by Judge A. F. Monroe after the latter had declared that Towner had committed the two offenses of driving an automobile while intoxicated and driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, and fleeing from the scene after causing an accident.

Towner pleaded guilty to both offenses and was sentenced to both a third charge, that of assault and battery, in which he was charged with striking a pedestrian with his automobile. The judge sentenced Towner to the county jail for 30 days and fined him $300.

The firemen, who made a record-breaking trip had safety nets spread and several ladders in readiness in case of necessity. According to Fire Chief William E. Van Meter, no more than five gallons of water were poured into the room in which the fire started and fresh paints presented a fire menace, according to Mr. Van Meter.
